FORTY-THIRD YEAR. LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, MONDAY, JULY 21, 1924. TWO CENTS

POLICE SLEW CONSUL

SABER CAUSED IMBRIE'S DEATH

MOSCOW, July 21.—An autopsy performed on the body of Robert Imbrie, American vice consul in Teheran, Persia, beaten to death by a religious mob last week, reveals that death was caused by a saber wound on the head, a Teheran dispatch said today.

The situation is considered serious the dispatch says, because sabers are carried only by the police

The diplomatic service has sent an engentic note to the Persia government calling attention to the fact that the government's failure to prevent the attack has caused considerable apprehension among foreigner residing in the city.

As investigation of the attack continues, it is evident the mob was incited by religious agitators who accused the Americans of poisoning a sacred fountain, which Imbrie and his companion, Melin Seymour, had gone to view.

Imbrie fought vigorously with his heavy cane, knocking down several of the Persians, until he finally was felled by a blow from a military sword. The American tried to arise, but was knocked down with a stone and his jaw broken.

The crowd, evidently thinking both Americans dead, then retreated and police, who had remained in the background, took the Americans to a hospital. Word went around that the Americans still were alive and the mob formed again, breaking in doors and windows of the hospital attacking the two men again. Imbrie apparently already was dead, but his body was beaten. Seymour was dragged thru the corridors and left for dead His condition is serious.

TEACHER SAVES AN ALIEN

Woman Wins Fight and Kravchuk Deportation Order Is Cancelled at Ellis Island.

DETROIT, July 21.—After an imprisonment of seven months on Ellis Island, William Kravchuk, 30 years old, was granted his liberty when an order of deportation for alleged radical activities in Detroit was cancelled. His release marks the successful termination of a two-year legal battle supported by friends and led by Miss Helen Kenney, in whose class at night school Kravchuk was a star pupil.

Came from Russia.

Kravchuk entered the United States from Grodino, Russia, in 1913. He worked at the Ford River Rouge plant for several years and then entered the real estate field. In September 1921, he enrolled in the board of education's Americanization classes, taught by Miss Kenney.

His investigation by department of justice agents followed in 1922, and theorder for his deportation was recommended in November, 1923, by Dr. P. L. Prentis, immigration inspector, after a hearing. The specific charge against him was that he has been affiliated with a society teaching the overthrowing by force of the United States government.

Later, when the action in the case seemed tardy, Miss Kenney went to Washington and made her plea before the department of labor. This plea, together with efforts made by Kravchuk's attorney, brought the case to the attention of Judge D. J. Knox of the United States district court. Kravchuk's release followed.

"I am overjoyed to know that my efforts and the efforts of other friends have been successful," declared Miss Kenney. "Kravchuk is not a dangerous alien; he is only a lonesome boy who wants the mother that he left in Russia. He wants to progress here. He wants to be a citizen. And now he will have his opportunity. It has been a long fight for justice, and right has triumphed.

"Educators are just awakening to their responsibilities to alien men and women. But the educators can not do their work as it should be done and the modern Americanization program can not be a success if the deportation of such men as Kravchuk continues under the present espionage system."

DARROW PARALLELS ACTION

Entering Plea of Guilty in Leopold-Loeb Case Similar to That of McNamara Brothers.

CHICAGO, July 21.—The Franks' case in which Clarence Darrow completely surprised the prosecution by entering pleas of guilty for the young murderers, Loeb and Leopold, is the second big criminal trial Darrow has handled in such a manner.

Darrow was chief counsel for the McNamara brothers, in their trial at Los Angeles thirteen years ago for the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times The trial had been in progress for some time, with both state and defense fighting for every possible advantage, when Darrow suddenly entered a plea of guilty. The taking a testimony immediately ended, and the McNamaras were sentenced to the penitentiary.

BLIND GIRL INTO COURTS

Helen E. Kerns Files Suit Thru Friend to Obtain Release From Another's Home.

Donald W McNeil filed a petition in the district court Monday afternoon in behalf of Helen E Kerns, alleging that she was being unlawful detained in the home of Lydia McMahon, against her will Miss Kerns is blind and crippled, the petition sets forth, and otherwise unable to care for herself, but she has sufficient property to maintain herself in better circumstances than she now enjoys. She could have better medical attention, it is said, than now afforded her.

NORTH CAROLINA PLANS MOVE

WILMINGTON, N. C., July 21.—A new flag may appear on the high seas. The state of North Carolina proposes to go into the shipping business. Governor Cameron Morrison is serious about it. His state water transportation commission has recommended the investment of millions of dollars in port terminals and, if needed, ships to use the terminals, as a means of reducing freight rate costs to Tar Heel manufacturers, merchants and farmers. Action by the legislature at a called session a few weeks from now is expected to be favorable to the project. Friends of the plan say coal, fertilizer grain and other commodities would be carried in state-owned bottoms in sufficient quantities to justify maintenance of the fleet. Commercial organizations and individuals throughout the commonwealth are backing the governor in the movement.

NEBRASKA PEOPLE GATHER.

GRANDA PARK, Cal., July 21.—Former Pawnee City and West Point, Nebraska, residents who are now Californians, will attend a picnic and reception here Wednesday, July 23. Major Fred Inglis, of the U. S. Army, will be a special guest of the gathering.

Major Inglis was born at Pawnee and lived at both Norfolk and West Point. He has lately been stationed in the Philippines where he acted as special aide to Governor General Wood and has been on a mission to Java, Borneo and Celebres. During his trip he took part in an elephant hunt in Indo-China. At the reception which will be tendered him in the evening he will tell of his experiences in the far east. Granda Park is four miles east of South Pasadena.

KISS WAS HIS UNDOING

Kansas Farmer, Unkissed for Forty-eight Years, Now Suing Wife for Divorce.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 21.—Kirby McRill dodged women's kisses for forty-eight years. Then, for lack of a kiss, he languished.

Kirby, until recently the world's champion unkissed, long distance hiker, has brought suit for divorce from Daisy Bell Hicks McRill, who was his trial marriage bride. And all because of a kiss.

Daisy Belle, according to Kirby's divorce petition, won't, even speak to him now, let alone kiss him. She denies she was a party to the marriage contract which McRill declares he will produce in court.

The kiss of a woman, Kirby says, was his undoing.

Three years ago, Kirby, wealthy farmer of Tonganoxie, Kas., hiked to Chicago from Kansas City and announced that he was forty-eight years old, wealthy and unkissed. Immediately he was deluged with proposals from women in all parts of the world. Girls pursued him, offering to kiss him in spite of the fact that he wore a soupstrainer mustache.

Kirby managed to fight off the women for two years. Then he succumbed to the charms of Daisy Belle Hicks, daughter of a farmer near Tongonoxie.

Kirby and Daisy Belle used to hike in mornings from Tonganoxie to Kansas City, a distance of thirty-five miles. One moonlight night as they were returning home, Kirby lost one of his championships, he says.

He was no longer the world's unkissed champion.

Like Samson, Kirby's powers—with the women at least—waned from that day. Also misfortune came upon him. Daisy Belel came to the city, found a job and began going out with men who did not wear bristly red mustaches. Again Kirby was the unkissed.

"This never would have happened if I hadn't been kissed the first time,' said the champion pedestrian. "Kissing is a dangerous habit. It's like opium. The more you get the more you want. I wish the women would leave me alone now."

Kirby says he spent months educating his bride in the art of hiking. She became so proficient she could lap off 100 miles a day with him quite easily. They had planned a little jaunt to San Francisco. Now he says he will have to break in a new partner.

Kirby has filed a civil suit against Daisy Belle for $250,000 punitive damages for deserting him.

CURIOUS BEAR FOLLOWS GIRL.

SARANAC LAKE, (By Mail).—Miss Nellie Neilson, guest at St. Huberts, was recently followed by a large black bear while on the trail leading to the summit of Giant of the Valley. She first noted the animal behind her when on the lower slopes of the mountain. Bruin appeared more curious than angry, stopping when the girl stopped and pushing on close behind her when she again started to climb. While by no means in a panic, the girl was unarmed and did not relish the thought of such a climbing companion to the summit. At the trail leading to the Giant's Wash Bowl she branched off, hoping the bear would keep straight on, but the animal shuffled along directly back of her. At a small brook, however, bruin decided they had reached the parting of the ways. After taking a long drink, the bear turned and went slowly down the trail. Guides who looked at the tracks of the animal assert it was one of the largest bears seen in that section of the Adirondacks.

NEW YORK IS BATTLE GROUND

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Groping in the darkness of an unprecedented political situation, party leaders—republican, democratic and independent—today began to fumble their way to a clear conception.

All—even the LaFollette group—were still undecided as to the outcome of the November elections because of the unmeasured strength of the independent movement. But theories, based on political experience, have begun to develop in every camp.

While the Coolidge leaders were claiming the president would carry every state carried by Hughes in 1916, they admitted his election is doubtful, unless he carries New York with its forty-five electoral votes. In other words, they concede that New York is the chief battle ground of the campaign. The democrats, on the oher hand, while claiming the "solid south" Kentucky, West Virginia, and Missouri, or a minimum of 150 votes, for Davis, declare that all the rest of the states are debatable and therefore claim a big advantage for their ticket.

The LaFollette independents are claiming a maximum of twenty-five states and a minimum that will throw the election into the house of representatives, where they hold the balance of power. With a nominal representative majority in the house, the republicans feel sure of victory should the election be thrown into congress. But the democrats think that once it became apparent the election is likely to go to the house as a result of the LaFollette candidacy, there will be a swing to Davis that will bring about his election.

New York, the real battle ground, is not going to be overlooked by the independents. Senator Wheeler, of Montana, LaFollette's running mate, has decided to make that state one of the primary objects of his whirlwind speaking tours that will begin within the next few weeks.

Before going to thet northwes Wheeler will stump New York, Massachusetts, Ohio and Pennsylvania all of which independents believe they have a chance to carry.

CARTER IS LOW IN QUALIFYING ROUNDS

CHICAGO, July 21.—Jimmy Manion, of St. Louis and George Dawson, of Chicago tied for low honors with the first twenty-five starters heard from in the qualifying round of the western golf championship on the Hinsdale course here today.

Both Manion and Dawson came in with cards of 70 for the first eighteen holes. Frank Dyer, of Memphis and Arthur Sweet, Chicago, were tied for the championship round play with 72 each. Other low scores:

J. J. McNamara, Chicago, 76.
Keefe Carter, Oklahoma City, 76.
Kenneth Hisert, Chicago, 75.
T. Frainey, Chicago, 77.
Lawson Watts, St. Louis, 74.
Howard Schendorf, Chicago, 73.
Albert Seckel, Chicago, 75.
Jimmy Johnston, St. Paul, 73.

Captain Carter, of the Flossmoore club, Chicago, jumped into the lead this afternoon with a score of 69.

WILL STUDY GORILLA.

NEW YORK, (By Mail).—Dr. W. B. Reid, a surgeon of note and former mayor of Rome, N. Y., is about to visit Africa to study the domestic life of the gorilla. Dr. Reid has a plan of using a flammenwerfer as a protective measure on his expedition into the jungle of East Africa to study the domestic and social habits of the gorilla. "Being a surgeon," said Dr. Reid, "I am naturally opposed to taking life. It is our purpose to establish a semi-permanent base in the Kenyea Mountains in British East Africa and there to live among the gorillas wholly without guns, revolvers, rifles or other projectile weapons. The gorilla is naturally timid and shy. He will not harm a human being unless he is cornered. The chemicals and the flammenwerfer will be used solely for protective purposes. They will never be used by our party to destroy life or wantonly to injure."

LOOK TO U. S. FOR STARS.

BERLIN, July 21.—Beer drinking is helping ruin German women for the films, according to a statement by Mary Pickford on her recent trip here. "They're rather heavy," she commented, "and I fear that this comes from too much beer." At the same time, Fraenze Dyck-Schnitzer, movie critic, told her countrywomen some unpleasant truths, namely, that while the film stars weren't all matronly, they certainly could not play the role of "baby star" at all. Fraenze tried to gloss over the frankness of the little American star by claiming that the German movie operators were partly to blame, since they did not know the art of making thirty or forty look on the screen like thirteen or fourteen. German film producers are turning to America for their film actresses, especially as the home talent is developing more and more beef.

TWO DISAPPEAR IN A WEEK

Young Men Leave Community Under Circumstances Not Quite Usual.

NEWCASTLE, Neb., July 21.—young men have disappeared from the Daily Branch community, southwest of here, this week. Bela Austin, sixteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bela Austin, of Newcastle, who has been working for Tom Blatchford, a farmer of the Daily community, is alleged to have taken a horse belonging to Mr. Blatchford, Mrs. Blatchford's gold watch and several dollars of church money that was in the house, and no trace of him has been found.

The other young man, John Daugherty, twenty-three years old, who lived with his parents on the home farm in Daily community, left the farm in a car to take the hired man to the depot at Newcastle and was to have been back in the afternoon to cultivate corn. When he failed to return in the afternoon, search was made for him along the road, his parents thinking he might have met with an accident. Then a telephone communication with relatives in Sioux City brought the information that some one had seen him in the Northwestern depot at Sioux City that evening, and so the police were notified and a wider search begun.

It was learned here that the hired man who was a stranger, being hired at the Daugherty farm about two weeks ago, left Newcastle on the train, and it is thought that young Daugherty drove his car to the city and left it, joining the hired man there. It was discovered that the young man drew $75 from his father's bank account here. His folks have received a card saying they might never see him again. Police of other cities were notified.

DEMPSEY IN A COLLISION

Fifteen Thousand Dollar Car of Champion Damaged in Crash Into Another Machine.

LOS ANGELES, July 21.—Jack Dempsey's $15,000 automobile was damaged today when it collided with another machine of the San Diego highway while the heavyweight champion and a party were returning from "location". No one was injured.

"The only thing hurt about Jack was his feelings—and pocketbook," Jack Kearns, his manager said.

PLANNING TO OUST DUNN

Fight Begins in Omaha to Elect Former Police Captain Wheeler in His Place.

OAMHA, July 21.—The fight by supporters of former Police Captain Lyman G. Wheeler to oust Police Commissioner Henry Dunn was started in earnest here today.

Volunteer workers number about fifty started circulating petitions asking for the recall of Dunn and the election of Wheeler in his place. Headquarters were opened in a downtown office building.

Nine thousand signatures are necessary to recall Dunn. Wheeler's friends said taht hoped to get 12,000 citizens to sign the document.

Both Wheeler and his friends denied that the ku klux klan is backing the Dunn recall.

Kansas City Star: The tollgate keeper in a certain section of Alabama is an aged darky. When, recently, a farmer of that district sought to pay toll by the offer of a dime, the coin was returned to him by the keeper with this statement:

"'Scuse me, boss, but I can't take dis dime. It's bent an' de county's got a strict rule agin our takin' mutilated coins."

"Indeed?" said the farmer. "Well, let me tell you that you gave me that very bent dime youiself in change yesterday!"

"Maybe, maybe," murmured the old darky. "Dere ain't no rule agin my handin' out mutilated money. It's only agin my takin' it."

DAWES PROJECT MUST NOT FAIL

LONDON, July 21.—Failure of the Dawes reparations settlement plan "would invite chaos," Charles Evans Hughes, the American secretary of state, declared here tonight in an address at the Pilgrim's dinner

"You may count on our interest and assistance in the necessary measures to assure the economic rehabilitation of Europe," Hughes said, his statement being greeted by applause. "It does not matter that this aid is not given by the government. Without wishing to say anything controversial on this occasion, I may give it as my conviction that had we attempted to make America's contribution to the recent plan of adjustment a governmental matter, we should have been involved in a hopeless debate and there would have been an adequate action. We should have been beset with demands, objections, instructions. [illegible] the way to make an American contribution to economic re[illegible]

"You have the Dawes plan, and you have had the participation of American experts with the liberty of constructive effort, which was essential because it was undertaken in the only way in which success was possible. When you deal with economic rehbilitation, you doubtless have in mind such contribution as America may be able to give disinterested advice and later participation in the absolutely necessary load The important, indeed the indispensible thing is that the methods should be continued and your disposition should be such that assistance of that sort can be rendered

"All discussions will be futile unless the arrangements ultimately made satisfy the investing public. We appreciate the difficulties but we believe that the Dawes plan opens the path of confidence and prosperity For that reason we are deeply interested in its prompt execution My confidence that a way will be found to surmount all the existing difficulties [illegible] would invite chaos. There is no gain to any one in that."

REBELS STILL HOLD STATE

Sao Paulo in Hands of the Body in Revolt.

TRAVELERS REPORT PROGRESS

Severe Food Shortage in the City Affected.

General Advance of Federals Apparently Not Tried—Three Fires in City During the Night.

BUENOS AIRES, July 21.—Developments in the Brazilian revolutionary situation over the week-end were not reassuring, according to reports reaching the Uruguayan border today, and the rebels still are in control of the major portions of the state of Sao Paulo.

The general advance of the federal forces, scheduled to take place Saturday, apparently was not attempted.

Three fires occurred in Sao Paulo city the night of July 8, according to travelers reaching Montevido from Santos. The building of the Standard Oil company was damaged, and two other buildings partly destroyed.

Federal forces claim to have shot down one of the rebel airplanes in skirmishing, Saturday, according to a communique given out by the Brazilian embassy here.

"Weather conditions in Sao Paulo have improved," the communique said, "allowing reconnoitering movements prevented previously by the heavy clouds. Government troops continue their movement preparatory to the maneuver which they are about to undertake."

A number of travelers who left Sao Paulo July 12, reached Montevideo from Santos last night. They said discipline in the rebel ranks was excellent and that a formidable military organization had been built up around the state army. The rebel troops seemed well supplied with ammunition and had taken control of several factories which were turning out additional equipment.

Guards were posted over banks and business houses.

There was a severe food shortage in Sao Paulo city and price regulation had been started. The rebels also had requisitioned considerable food supplies from the interior, beans, cattle, rice and milk.

Gen. Isodore Popez, the rebel commander, has decreed complete freedom for the Sao Paulo press and holds daily conferences for newspaper men. Newspapers in Sao Paulo are printing as usual but are restricted in size owing to a shortage of paper.

According to rebel sources, the travelers said, six hundred were killed in the street fighting which preceded expulsion of federal forces from Sao Paulo city.

The Sao Paulo rebels have collected a war fund of 62,000 contos of reis (more than $6,000,000) according to other advices.

Spread of the revolt to the big towns of the interior of Sao Paulo state was confirmed by yesterday's official communique received here from Rio De Janeiro. The communique said a lieutenant and five petty officers were captured yesterday at Riberao Preto, an important town to the west of Sao Paulo city.

"Our troops, under command of General Potyguara, took up more advanced positions Saturday afternoon," the communique said.

MARES SHOULD SERVE TIME

Attorney General Tells Supreme Court That Jury Verdict Is Sustained.

Attorney General Spillman filed with the supreme court Monday a brief in which he dissects the testimony introduced by the state in Saline county in the prosecution of Edward Mares, Wilber garage owner, which resulted in his conviction on a charge of buying and selling a stolen Ford car. In conclusion he says that the testimony amply sustains the judgment, and that if the jury believed the testimony there was no other verdict possible.

Mares was arrested in connection with the discovery by the state sheriff that a farm near Wilber was being used to hide stolen cars, where their numbers were changed. Mares was accused of being the man who disposed of some of these stolen machines. He was accused by a man named [illegible] who admitted stealing cars and running them to the farm. He said that Mares purchased some of these after the engine numbers had been changed.

The particular car involved in this indictment was the property of Louis Mougey, and was a Ford coupe stolen from the street near St. Paul Methodist church. Mares sold it to Tom Chaloupka, who said that afterwards Mares gave him a check for $[illegible] to reimburse him but the bank would not pay the check. It was claimed that Mares said he bought the car with others from the Hussong company at Lincoln but F. R. Hussong testified he had never sold him any.

FOG HINDERS AIR FLIGHT

MACLAREN IS DELAYED AT TOKATAN BAY, JAPAN.

Argentine Aviator Also to Try Round World Journey Within Next Few Days, First Leaving Amsterdam.

TOKIO, July 21.—Fog prevented Major MacLaren, British round-the-world flier from hopping off from Tokatan bay, Uruppu island, for Paramushiru, northermost of the Kurile islands, according to a wireless message received here from the Japanese destroyer, Isakaze.

Colonel Broome, advance officer of the world encircling attempt, who now is with MacLaren, is recovering from a slight illness, the message said.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—A message received here from Cordova, Alaska, early Sunday stated that Major MacLaren had left Tokatan bay for Paramushiru.

The dispatches quoted radiogram advices received by the naval wireless station at Cordova.

AMSTERDAM, July 21.—Plans of Major Zanni, Argentine aviator, for his attempted flight around the world have been completed. The aviator probably will take off from this city in the next few days.

ROB A FILLING STATION

Enter Oklahoma Oil Company at Fourteenth and South and Take $18.60.

The Oklahoma Oil company's filling station at Fourteenth and South streets was entered some time Sunday night and $18.60 taken from a money box. Employes noticed the robbery shortly after coming to work Monday morning and reported it to the police station.

Entrance was gained by unlocking the door. The robber had relocked it when he left. There were no signs of violence to the door or cash register which was empty. No large amount of money is kept at the station, the money box containing receipts taken in after 4 p. m. at which time the bulk of the money is taken to the bank.

WITH THE CANDIDATES.

President Coolidge: Returned to Washington early Monday from a week-end trip down the Potomac on the Mayflower, prepared, in addition to handling the duties of his office, to resume his political conferences.

Senator LaFollette: Spent the day with close advisors, going over the reports of the national and advisory committees of the conference for progressive political action, which outline the independent campaign and the organization of the various groups which have been included in the new party.

John W. Davis: The democratic nominee began work on his speech of acceptance at the home of Charles Dana Gibson on 700 Acre Island, Dark Harbor, Maine. He lunches with Frank Polk, his intimate friend and advisor.

CLAMOR FOR BRYAN TALKS

COLORADO DEMOCRATS INVITE HIM TO SPEAK.

Assurance of Party Support Is Given by Chairman Raymond Miller of State Central Committee.

Governor Bryan has received an invitation from Chairman Raymond Miller of the Colorado state committee to speak before the Colorado committee in Denver August 8. He has declined on the ground that he does not think it proper for him to attempt to discuss national political issues until after his official notification of his nomination for vice president. Chairman Miller says in his invitation that the democrats of Colorado join with the entire party thru the west in rejoicing at Governor Bryan's selection as the candidate for vice president with John W. Davis. He states that the Colorado state ticket will be headed by Governor Sweet and Senator Adams, both of whom are thoroly in accord with Governor Bryan's principles and with party principles as outlined in the national platform. Governor Bryan is asked to attend the state committee meeting at Denver when it nominates a state ticket and he is assured that his coming will strengthen the national ticket in Colorado and add materially to the enthusiasm of the rank and file of the party in that state.

In declining the invitation Governor Bryan says:

"I deeply appreciate the invitation and assurances of support of the democratic national ticket by the democracy of Colorado and hope to have an opportunity to meet them later in the campaign and to give every possible assistance to the democratic cause."

Governor Bryan was busy Monday forenoon answering correspondence of a private nature and preparing his address of acceptance. He spent the morning at his home dictating to a stenographer and did not appear at his office in the capitol.

The official anouncement that the notification of Governor Bryan is to be held August in Lincoln came from the national committee. The notification of Mr. Davis is to take place at his home at Clarksburg, W. Va., August 11.

The mayor and chamber of commerce and various clubs of Kansas City had endeavored to have a joint notification in that city.

SEES CHILDREN BURNED

Mother of Five Watches Offspring Perish in Blaze in Pennsylvania Farmhouse.

MERCER, Pa., July 21.—Five children were burned to death in a farmhouse near here today, while their mother looked on.

The bodies were taken from the ruins. They had huddled together in a corner, driven back from escape thru the window by the smoke and flames.

The dead:

LeFayette, nine; Lee, eight; Enid, five; Clyde, three and Fred, nine months.

The father, Fred Hedgelin, had gone away to work and Mrs. Hedglin was in the garden when she turned at the scream of one of the children and saw the entire first floor of her home in flames.

Realizing that it would be impossible to save the children by attempting to make her way to the second floor, the mother stood outside and begged her children to toss the nine months old baby out the second story window.

Only Evan, seven, seemed to understand, and he leaped into his mothers arms and was slightly injured.

Looking up, Mrs. Hedgling saw her other children driven back from the windown and knew they were lost.

CHILDREN ARE SUFFOCATED

Three Small Victims Asleep When Trapped After Oil Stove Explodes.

MUNCIE, Ind., July 21.—"Death due to suffocation," was the verdict returned today by Coroner Frank Downing in the death of Lorene Batt, nine, Ruth Batt, seven, and George Batt, three years old, whose charred bodies were taken from the ruins of the Batt country home, nine miles northeast of Muncie, Sunday morning.

The children, asleep in an upstairs room, were trapped by the flames starting from the explosion of an oil stove and it is the belief of the coroner that they were overcome by the smoke before they awakened. Rumors that the fire might have been of incendiary origin were scouted by the coroner today.

SAYS DIDN'T KILL SPOUSE

AGED MAN CONVICTED OF MURDER TAKES APPEAL.

William L. Phegley's Attorney Challenges the Validity of the Present Statute Covering Murder.

William L. Phegley, fifty-seven year old farmer of Boone county, convicted in Adams county of killing his wife and who was sentenced to twelve years in prison for it, lodged an appeal Monday with the supreme court.

Phegley insists that the shooting was an accident and occurred while he and his wife were tussling over the possession of a small calibred revolver. The state's story is that Phegley left his home in Boone county for the deliberate purpose of killing his wife. Pete Evans, the man whose housekeeper she was, and himself. Phegley was seen about the Evans' farm during the day of April 5, 1924.

The second time he appeared he approached the house. Evans' story was that Mrs. Phegley saw her husband, and begged Evans to keep him out. Evans went down to the yard and shut the gate on Phegley. Evans says that Phegley pulled the gun on him and told him to get. He was frank to admit that he got. He dodged here and there among the farm buildings, finally landing in the cellar.

There were no eye witnesses to the encounter. Phegley says that he merely wanted to talk over a settlement of some property matters, but that his wife evidently misconstrued his visit, for the first thing he realized was that she was grabbing at a small automatic in his jacket pocket. He says she was an expert gun woman, and he took no chances. He grabbed the gun, and it was accidentally discharged three times. The woman walked back to the house, but died four days later in a Hastings' hospital.

Chief Brannigan of Hastings said that Phegley walked into his office that afternoon and gave himself up, saying he intended to kill his wife and Evans and then himself, but the gun came to pieces in his hands. It was claimed by the state the Phegley believed his wife to have been living with Evans and that this was the motive.

Phegley denied the story of the chief, and also that he had drawn the gun on Evans. He said that Evans left abruptly on request of his wife. It was pointed out that the state never tried to get any dying statement from the wife, altho she was four days in a hospital and that one could have been secured.

In addition to the usual complaints of erroneous instruction and errors in admission of testimony, J. E. Willitts, the defendant's attorney,

GAS TAX THE BEST METHOD

MAYOR ZEHRUNG FINDS NEED OF BETTER ROADS.

Declares That Driver Will Find That He Is Money Ahead as Result of Car Upkeep and Miles Per Gallon.

Mayor Zehrung has returned from a trip thru northern Iowa and a dip into Minnesota convinced that the two cent gas tax is the thing for Nebraska. Here's a cross section of his viewpoint:

"People who go to dances pay for the privilege of dancing. People who swim in the muny pool pay at the gate. Those who play golf pay for it. Patrons do not expect pleasures and advantages for nothing. The man who seeks pleasure on the highway should pay. It is but reasonable. It is, in the long run, economy. The saving on mileage per gallon and on car upkeep will exceed the two cent per gallon tax."

The mayor believes that the gas tax will be to Nebraska what the Babcock system has been to Minnesota. In that state bonds issued for gravel roads are amortized out of the auto tax. It is dollar matching with the federal government, but it is not a direct tax levy such as Nebraska has. The man who uses the roads pays the bill. The executive was a bit ashamed when he struck the road from Omaha to Lincoln.

"It was in horrible shape Sunday," he said. "It must be a tremendous shock to tourists just off the graveled highways of northern Iowa. "As far as the eye can reach in that country, one sees nothing but gravel. It is like driving over a carpet. And it it is not alone the highways. Side roads are of gravel. It would be worth far more than a two cent tax to travel over such roads here. It is a just tax which the user should pay. I understand that gravel pits are being opened all along the Platte. Why not? We have millions of tons of gravel available for road building."

Mayor and Mrs. Zehrung were accompanied on the motor trip by Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Livingston. They found the weather extremely cool—so cool that the fires were kept burning at night.

BUTLER MAY BE "FIRED"

Brigadier General, Loaned to Philadelphia, Has Trouble With City Administration.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—A showdown on whether Smedley D. Butler, will be "fired" from the cabinet of Mayor Kendrick as director of public safety for Philadelphia, is expected today.

The brigadier general of marine corps, "loaned" to Philadelphia by President Coolidge for one year, so the fighting Quaker could clean up vice, crime and liquor here, will confer with Kendrick today as to his status. The two officials are of no longer one mind as to police procedure. As a result, Butler, it is understood, will not be retained as head of the safety department after this leave expires on January 5, 1925 and he may even be asked to resign his post at once."

Politicians, it is said, have brought pressure to bear on Kendrick in an attempt to get the mayor to dispense with the services of the marine general-police chief.

Butler is accused of being 'out of harmony" with the administration, and with political leaders. This accusation came when the director began redistricting police stations to kill political control of the police department.

With the sword of dismissal hanging over his head, Butler today continued his work of redistricting police stations. He refused to comment on the situation. He smilingly said he had "another employer who is waiting for me, if I am not wanted here."

PLANS WAGE ARBITRATION

Dispute in Coal Fields Over Pay May Be Settled by Acting Governor.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 21.—Moves by Acting Gov. Tom Anglin, of Oklahoma, were under way today to arbitrate the wage scale dispute in the southeastern Oklahoma coal fields where miners drove non-union workmen from thme Latimer county mine last week.

Adjutant General Markham was at Wilberton today, gathering confirmations for the government which will be used later in the effort to bring operators and union leaders to a settlement in a conference with the state officials.

Anglin said there was no need for state troops and such troops would be dispatched to the mine fields only in event of emergency.

ALLEGED ROBBER IS SHOT.

CHICAGO, July 21.—A. T. Walters, forty-seven, of Logansport, Ind., was shot and killed here early today in the yard of the Wholesale Hosiery establishment of Campbell, Inc.

Roland Campbell, secretary-treasurer of the company, shot Walters as the latter was trying to break into the place, apparently for the purpose of robbery, Campbell said.

FINALLY FREED TO ENTER AMERICA

For weeks Mrs. Filomena Barbara, of Sommerville, Mass., who had been brought up and educated in America, was held at the Ellis Island immigration station in New York because her latest baby was born in Italy, and Italy's immigration quota was filled. Secretary Davis, however, finally consented to her entry with her baby, and she has rejoined her husband and two other children in Somerville.

FOUR CENTS NOT ENOUGH

INDEPENDENT OIL DEALERS FROWN ON SUGGESTION.

Bryan Idea of an Adequate Margin to Be Ignored—17 Cent Gasoline Now Costs Dealers 16.41 Cents.

The independent oil dealers will pay no attention to Governor Bryan's latest gasoline idea, the four-cent profit margin, M. B. Atkins of the A. B. A. Oil company, said Monday noon. The four cent margin is not anywhere near enough, said Mr. Atkins, and the independents will disregard it entirely and will not vary an inch from their present schedule.

Mr. Atkins in commenting further on the subject, stated that the refinery price of the present stock of straight run gasoline was ten cents a gallon, the freight to Lincoln amounts to 2.41 cents and the overhead espenses in hauling and handling adds four cents more to the total bringing it to 16.41 cents. This gasoline, according to Mr. Atkins, is being sold by the various stations at 17 cents, a profit of .59 cents a gallon.

L. L. Coryell delayed giving any statement on the situation but stated that he considered the governor's competition unfair. He pointed out that the office of the governor's oil company, was located in an old railroad car, discarded by convicts and the electric sign was an old cracker box painted red.

Mr. Coryell further pointed out that the governor's station is located at the tracks and the expense of hauling to the station is eliminated. The expensive station is not used and the governor's overhead expenses are practically negligable, he stated.

DOUBLE FOR BRYAN.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Charles W. Bryan, governor of Nebraska, and democratic vice presidential nominee, has a "double" in Chicago.

Isaac Jennings Bryan, prominent republican here, bears so striking a resemblance to "Charley" that friends fear he may be confused with the democrat.

And politics is the forte of both—another similarity. The Chicago Bryan now is executive assistant to Judge Olson at the municipal court.

Like "Charley," Isaac is bald.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB IN SURPRISE MOVE

Plead Guilty To Murder of Robert Franks In Preliminary Hearing.

STATE DEMANDS GALLOWS

Judge Announces Insanity Cannot Be the Defense.

NOT TO BE HEARD BY JURY

Trial to Begin July 23—Darrow Expects to Introduce Alienists to Show "Degree of Responsibility."

CRIMINAL COURT, CHICAGO, July 21.—Dicing with the gallows, Nathan Leopold, jr., and Richard A. Loeb, millionaire youths and super-intellectuals, today pleaded guilty to the murder of Robert Franks, schoolboy, also the son of a millionaire.

Justice Caverly can sentence them to hang, if he so decides.

By pleading guilty, Leopold and Loeb have made it impossible for a defense of "insanity" to be argued, Judge Caverly explained to the United Press, interpreting the surprise move of the defense.

"It is not legal, of course," Caverly said, "for an insane person to enter a plea of guilty in this state, and by entering their pleas, the defendants have cast aside any hope of being proven insane."

Caverly intimated, however, that the defense could show a "degree of moral responsibility" which might, and might not, affect the sentence of the court.

The prosecution immediately demanded the gallows.

The action of the boys came like a thunder clap to the crowded courtroom, filled to overflowing by a huge staff of attorneys for both state and defense, most of the Leopold and Loeb families and hundreds of morbidly curious spectators who gained admission despite the efforts of a corps of twenty-five uniformed policemen and sheriff's deputies.

Clarence Darrow, sphinx-like, dean of criminal attorneys, who is sixty-seven years old, and has been practicing law for thirty-seven years in Chicago, entered the first plea for the boys. He stood erect, throwing his shoulders back, his voice increasing in volume as he spoke, until he fairly shouted that the defendants pleaded guilty.

Judge Caverly, after consulting State's Attorney Crowe, and Darrow, announced that hearing of evidence in the case would begin Wednesday morning, July 23. The hearing will be held by Judge Caverly and without a jury.

The court, under the law of Illinois, may sentence the young college graduates to death. Other sentences which he may pass are life imprisonment or imprisonment for any number of years over fourteen.

Crowe, dumbfounded and taken entirely by surprise at the plea of guilty, made no attempt to contest the action, but announced he would call every state's witness to the stand, "so that the court may hear all the evidence in this case."

Not to Shut Out Evidence.

"We will not allow the defense to shut out any evidence by pleading guilty," Crowe said. "These boys, both of them sane, and entirely responsible, have committed the direst murder in the history of Chicago. They have come into open court and publicly entered their plea confessing that they kidnaped and murdered an innocent child.

"The state has a thoro case against these boys. They must hang. Nothing else must be permitted."

Darrow, in his argument, declared no attempts would be made to set the defendants at liberty.

"These boys, your honor, have proven themselves unfit to mingle in society. They must not be set free and no attempt toward that end will be made."

Altho slightly heavier than when they entered prison seven weeks ago the youths were markedly pale from their confinement.

Leopold's eyes, which have been considered unusually bright and searching were watery. He gazed into space without apparently seeing anyone. His aged father, the millionaire president of the Morris Paper Box company, sat silently in the courtroom, tears trickling down his rough face.

Loeb, somewhat taller and more erect, faced the court with more composure. His eyes did not waver from Judge Caverly as he declared that he understood the consequences of pleading guilty to murder.

The only trace of nervousness on Loeb's part was slight shuffling of his feet.

Loeb's father, Albert H. Loeb, multi-millionaire [illegible] of Sears, Roebuck and [illegible], was not present. [illegible] ill with heart trouble and is resting at the [illegible] home at Charlevoix, Mich. [illegible] at Charlevoix, Mich., but has [illegible] court.

Tiny Courtroom Jammed

The tiny courtroom, perched [illegible] building, just outside of Chicago's loop, was jammed almost to suffocation. State's Attorney Crowe and his large staff of assistants and Darrow and his aides—together with several state and defense attorneys—stood in solid mass formation directly in front of Judge Caverly. A large group of newspaper reporters, special correspondents and feature wirters crowded about in order to hear every word that was spoken.

The crowd was slow to grasp the meaning of Darrow's statement when he broke out in a loud voice, declaring:

"Your honor, these defendants plead guilty!"

This move, so absolutely unexpected, was as big a surprise to newspaper men as attorneys for the state, and spectators.

A large group of newspapers photographers who came with orders to take every possible picture, were disappointed when Judge Caverly refused to allow them to

DETECTIVE TO PAY FINE

C. A. SHERMAN TO PAY $100 FOR CONSPIRACY CONVICTION.

Local Private Operative Rebuked for Occupation He Chose—May Appeal to Supreme Court.

C. A. Sherman, manager of a private detective agency, who was convicted of conspiracy to blackmail by a jury in Judge Stewart's court about three months ago, was fined $100 and costs for the alleged offense by Judge Stewart, Monday forenoon.

In summing up the case before passing sentence, Judge Stewart stated he regretted very much that a young man of Sherman's aparant ability should choose an occuaption that is discredited by the laws of the state.

Judge Stewart stated that the laws of Nebraska delegate no more powers of arrest to a private detective than are given to a private citizen. The only difference, he said, is that the detective is given a badge and a gun. The possibility of the detective engaging in nefarious and felonious practices is auticipated, the judge declared.

In commenting on the situation that is argued by Sherman as a defense, the acquittal of John Lowe his alleged co-conspirator, Judge Stewart stated that as far as the law was concerned the co-conspirator need never have been charged with the crime, and the fact the co-conspirator has been acquitted by a jury in no measure invalidates the conviction of the other.

Sherman and Lowe were charged jointly with conspiracy to extort money from Clara Remington and Wesley Merica by threatening to expose alleged indiscreet conduct at a local rooming house.

After passing sentence Judge Stewart remanded the convicted man to the custody of the sheriff and ordered him confined in the conuty jail until the fine is paid. R. J. Green, Sherman's attorney, indicated that a writ of error would be presented to the court immediately and an appeal is probable.

WAITING TO HANDLE CROP

RAILROADS PREPARED TO MOVE SPEEDILY TO MARKET.

Regional Board Hears Reports of Optimistic Character From Shippers and Representatives of Carriers.

That the railroads of the west are better prepared than ever to handle the crops of this year was the substance of the reports made to the degional board which met last Saturday at Salt Lake city. It was attended by H. G. Taylor, state railway commissioner, as one of the members from this section.

The only menacing feature of the situation is that very few persons have stored their winter supply of coal yet, and this may put upon the railroads a peak movement of fuel in September and October, when there will also be a heavy movement of crops.

A feature of the situation was the wide diversity of the crop reports. Those from Nebraska were good, while Colorado reported the best in her history, including fruits and vegetables. Lack of water has brought about a serious situation in Idaho. In many parts water was shut off the first of May, and hundreds of farmers have had the unpleasant experience of sitting by while their crops dry up. The fruits, especially the prunes which form a big crop usually, are all gone. The same is true of vegetables. The potato crop will be normal.

Utah is in the same unhappy condition, due to the same cause, lack of water. The city of Salt Lake, where ordinarily water runs in the gutters most of the time, is now on water rations.

Wyoming reports were that the general crop situation is fair, that the cattle business is poor, while the sheep men are again making a lot of money.

The railroads reported that their equipment is in excellent shape, and that there is a surplus now available. Refrigerator cars, which usually form a shortage, are now ample in number and scattered all the way to Ogden. The board adopted a resolution asking coal customers to begin storage at once, and thus aid in averting a possible shortage of cars later.

HARVEST BEING COMPLETED

Wheat Generally Good and Up to Expectations in Yield—Corn Behind in Growth.

Wheat harvest is almost completed and oats are over half harvested according to the mid-month crop report of the Division of Crop and Livestock estimates issued here Monday.

Corn is unchanged in condition, altho only a small portion of the state reported insufficient moisture the report stated.

The report said: "The wheat harvest is practically completed in counties south of the Platte river. While a few reports indicate shrunken grain the crop as a whole will come up to July 1 expectations in yields. Threshing started last week in southern counties.

"The reports from farmers indicate that the corn crop is fifteen days behind its usual stage of growth for this date. Most of the fields are in a good stae of cultivation. The July 1 condition which was discounted 25 per cent on account of lateness and stand is unchanged as the temperature has been too low for maximum growth.

"Corn is about as far advanced in south central and south western counties as it is in eastern counties this year. The moisture supply has been very light in western counties which enable more cultivation and the crop made better progress.

"A fairly good crop of oats is expected. The cool, wet weather has been favorable for the crop. About 50 per cent of the average has been harvested to date.

"Barley has been injured by drouth in western sections and the yields reduced. The recent rains were a little too late to benefit the crop.

"The condition of potatoes is good altho reports indicate a slightly lower average. The early crop is about ready for market.

"The supply of harvest labor has been sufficient in most counties. About 15 per cent of the reports indicated a shortage.

"The soil moisture supply was reported medium except in north central and west central counties. Rains have relieved the serious condition in south central and south western counties. Hay, pastures and small grain crops have been injured, but corn and forage crops have done well in the dry districts.

"The wild hay crop will be short due to the spring drouth in the leading sections of production. The first crop of alfalfa averaged lighter than usual, but the second crop will be heavier than usual and may offset the first crop. Other tame hay has done well.

"Practically all the reports indicated a favorable condition of livestock. However, some losses of pigs were reported.

"Shipments of livestock from western pasture scetions will be the same as last year. The in movement this spring was less, but this fill be offset by a slight increase in locally produced stuff which has been increasing slowly but steadily."

take flashlight pictures. They were allowed, however, to take time exposures.

Evidences of Nerves.

"Babe" and "Dickie" showed unmistakable evidence of nerves thruout the proceedings.

When Judge Caverly asked Leopold if he understood that by pleading guilty he was placing himself in a position where he might be sentenced to death, the boy's lips quivered, his eyes dropped and then he looked up with a faltering, "I do."

Loeb jumped and turned his face away when Crowe demanded a death sentence.

Allen Loeb and Foreman Leopold, older brothers of the two defendants, sat side by side near Nathan Leopold, sr., and Jacob Loeb, an uncle of one of the boys. They talked together in low whispers. None of them seemed seriously affected, except the elder Leopold, whose face twitched with emotion as reference was made to the hanging of his son.

Altho many spectators disobeyed court orders by taking standing room, the officers—tall and erect, some of the finest specimens of the police force, held the crowd in good order thruout the hearing.

Hearing Ordered Wednesday.

When Judge Caverly finally ordered the hearing of evidence for Wednesday morning, the spectators and all the principals filed out of the courtroom in good order. Leopold and Loeb were taken back to their cells, in the county jail, and the court called for other cases on the docket.

Immediately after the hearing, Crowe ordered ten detectives to round up all the state's witnesses in order that they may be ready to testify when the case is called Wednesday.

"We will present all our witnesses," Crowe stated, "and will see to it that all the testimony is entered in the record."

Judge Caverly, however, explained that no corroborative testimony is necessary, when there is no jury, and that one witness to each event in the crime is sufficient.

Sheriff Hoffman announced special precautions would be taken at the jail to prevent any possible attempts of the youths to commit suicide. All their food and every article which comes into their possession will be carefully inspected, he said.

Alienists May Testify.

Both sides announced they would be ready for presentation of evidence Wednesday, July 23.

Benjamin Bacharach, aiding Darrow announced that the defense wished to introduce testimony of certain alienists who have examined Leopold and Loeb in order to show the court "the degree of responsibility" of the defendants.

Believing that the defense was attempting to prove the boys insane, Crowe broke in, shouting:

"Just a minute, your honor."

"If the defense in this case is trying to show that these boys are insane," asked Crowe, "how can they come into this court and legally plead guilty?

"If there is any question as to the sanity of these boys, the state's attorney demands that a jury of twelve men be selected so that the state can prove beyond all shadow of a doubt that Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb are sane—that they are guilty of murdering Robert Franks—and that they must hang."

Bacharach in his argument for presentation of evidence to the court without a jury said: "Your honor, if a formal trial is held and witnesses are called to testify before a jury and attorneys battle and quibble over legal technicalities, the whole case would be given the air of a circus sideshow or a vaudeville performance.

"We desire rather to submit to the court the real evidence in this case, allowing the court to sentence these boys as the court sees fit, understanding, of course, the court may sentence to death."

"We are ready with the state's case and will present all our witnesses," Crowe said. "These boys must hang for the direst murder in the history of Chicago."

Darrow smiled as he saw the look of consternation on the faces of his legal opponents.

"These boys as they now are, are not fit to mingle in society and we will make no effort to set them free," Darrow said.

Both state and defense will present their evidence when court is opened on Wednesday. It is probable that hearing of evidence will continue for several weeks.

Morbidly Curious Arrive.

Morbidly curious throngs stampeded the dimly lighted corridors of the criminal court building today, fighting for a chance to witness the prologue to the Leopold-Loeb murder trial, one of the most sensational cases in the modern history of crime.

Hundreds of people gained admission to the building itself. Other hundreds were lined up along the sidewalk, hoping against hope they could enter. Court was not to open until 10 a. m., but at 8 a. m., fully 1,000 people were in line with thousands more expected to battle for a glimpse of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, millionaire youths who confessed to killing Robert Franks, fourteen-year-old school boy, "just for a thrill."

The dingy criminal court building, a relic of another generation, was carefully guarded by scores of special police officers and court bailiffs. Impetuous men and women refused to wait for elevator service to start and plodded their way up six flights of stairs to gain admission to Judge Caverly's court. They were repulsed at the head of the stairs and forced to wait their turn.

Remembering how the crowds battered the doors from their hinges when Leopold and Loeb were arraigned six weeks ago, orders were issued to keep crowds from the floor on which the courtroom is located. None will be allowed to stand in the court.

The courtroom itself was in readiness. Reserved seats for more than 100 newspaper reporters, special correspondents, and feature writers were roped off. Telegraph instruments, equipped with noiseless sounders, were operating.

A unique feature of the court was a specially built seven foot wall, separating the jury box from the crowd of spectators. Altho selection of a jury will not start until the trial is actually opened, this wall has been erected as a special precaution against spectators conversing with members of the jury panel.

Judge Caverly called court to order promptly at 10 a. m. No flashlight pictures can be made he announced, but newspaper photographers may take pictures by time exposure.

"This is a courtroom not a sideshow," Caverly said.

After explaining rules of the court the case of Leopold and Loeb was called and attorneys for the state and defense stepped before the bench.

Judge Caverly called upon Darrow to present any motions in behalf of the defense.

CITY DICKERING FOR BLOCK WEST OF VIADUCT.

Plug Argument Between Head of Street Departmnt and Mr. Schroder Not Settled With Harmony.

The city is dickering for a block of ground west of the O street viaduct and between First and Second and N and O. This ground is back of the county's tract. Commissioner Cowgill offered a resolution at Monday's council meeting instructing the legal department to negotiate with the several owners with a view of purchase for use of a material ground. The introducer says that $5,000 would be too much to pay. He doesn't say what, in his estimation, would be a fair and just consideration.

The council put its official o. k on the sale of $100,000 of hospital bonds to the Omaha Trust company, low bidder. The issue goes at par and accrued interest to date of delivery, draws a premium of $5,301.63, the purchaser furnishes the blank bonds, the same to be issued at 5 per cent.

The plug argument between Commissioners Schroeder and Cowgill has not been terminated. It is not a plug hat argument but one pertaining to water supply for street flushing purposes! Mr. Schroeder invited his colleague to desist from drawing water from fire hydrants. Mr. Cowgill contends that the flusher supply system installed down town was a fizzle and that it were not a fizle it would not assist him in filling the cart for the purpose of flushing streets four miles out. At which, some other attached remarks that streets should not be flushed four miles out.

Mr. Schroeder contends that the fire plugs are loosened and gagged and abused from flusher feeding use. Mr. Cowgill says that they are bad when he hits 'em.

George R. Smith was summoned to appear before the council to show cause why a certain building permit should not be revoked. It has to do with an improvement at Thirty-first and Fair.

The contract for finish hardware for the new Lincoln General hospital was awarded the Lahr Hardware company which firm bid $4,888.88. Because of certain specification modifications, $153.03 is added.

A resolution was submitted ordering in paving in district 601, M street, Thirty-third to Thirty-seventh and Thirty-seventh, M to O. More than a majority of abutting property is represented in petitions asking for the improvement.

The Abel Construction company was awarded the contract for paving in district 589, D street, Fifth to Eighth. This firm bid $12,695.20.

Commissioner Cowgill submitted a proposed amendment to the charter giving to the city the right to engage in the purchase and general sale of gasoline. The council voted some time ago in favor of submission of the issue at the general November election.

An ordinance creating paving district 612 was introduced. This includes the following; Elmwood avenue, Randolph to D; Thirty-second, Randolph to D and D, Twenty-sevent to Thirty-third.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, the noted orator and unbeliever, died suddenly from heart disease at his home, Walston-on-Hudson, N. Y. He was sixty-six years old.

The senatorial investigating committee was going at its work openly and going to a great deal of trouble to secure the presence of state officials and others against whom charges had been made.

Engineer Michael J. Graybill and Fireman George A. Gramley were seriously injured in a rear end collision of two freight trains at Crete.

Ed. Vanderpool, A. O. Bennett, Frank Gillan, Charles Goodspeer and Charles Mueller left for a week's outing on the Blue.

People in the personals: Mrs. Ralph T. Ogilvie, Miss Maud Hazlett, S. L. McCoy, Mrs. Paul H Holm, Miss Ada Coleman, editor of the Stromsburg Head Light, Mrs. Grant E. Laflin.

The spiritualist camp meeting broke up for the evening without results. In the circle were Justice Walter Leese, Deputy State Superintendent Beck, Insurance Commissioner Bryant, John L. Sheldon and several others. The medium said it was a hard circle to manage. Presently her husband declared Mr Sheldon had hypnotized the medium and that the seance must come to a close.

CORSET STILL IN FIELD.

NEW YORK, July 21—When Paris shops declared recently they no longer will sell corsets, the edict was heralded far and wide as signaling the doom of stays for the American woman. For a long time there has been a growing impression among the uninformed that corsets are nearing extinction, and that women never again will use stays. However, Munn & Co., patent and trade mark attorneys, have this to say: "The number of patents granted in any field of endeavor is an unfailing index of the degree of promise in that field. It is a better index than the opinion of a fashion expert in Paris. The fact that inventions in corsets are on the increase is a good omen that the use of corsets will be on the increase. The first six months of this year there have been ten patents granted for inventions of corsets. Last year only ten patents for corsets were granted in the whole year; only seven in 1922 and only four in 1921."

LEAGUE PROUD OF RECORD.

GENEVA, (By Mail).—With production of coal in the Saare Valley reaching during the month of March, and continuing ever since, the highest figure it has ever attained since the close of the war, the League of Nations is pointing with pride to its administration, not only there but elsewhere, as a prosperity getter. At the present time the league is not only charged with the administration of the Saare Valley and the Free City of Dantzig, for the time being is also in control of the financial administration of Austria and Hungary. In all of these four centers, the league has not only been able to get the financial and economic situations back onto a sound basis, but has been able to bring about a degree of prosperity, that is fast becoming the pride of all leaguers.

BOUGHT WIFE DRIVING NAG

BUT LEO PARKER PUT UNDER A PEACE BOND.

His Wife Alleged That He Was Mean and Sent Her Out on a Stormy Night With a Babe in Her Arms.

Leo Barker bought his wife a cow and a horse and buggy and yet, according to his account of their domestic relations, she was not satisfied. She wanted a house away from Belmont even if she must do without the cow and the horse and buggy. The husband was placed under a $200 peace bond for a period of six months by virtue of Justice Steven's ruling Monday morning.

The wife, Gustie Barker, testified that Leo beat her up, kicked her out into a stormy night and that she wandered about carrying a babe in her arms until morning. Both were saturated and near exhaustion when they finally found a home where they were welcome. Neighbors refused to admit them. Certain of the neighbors testified that thir refusal was due to a disinclination to become entangled in the Barker affairs.

The woman testified that Leo had threatened to kill her. She held a babe while in court. He held the older child. He said that his wife was enraged because he remained down town all day. She declined to cook supper and, he said, her words were harsh and profane. He denied that he had ever put hand upon her for purposes of intimidation.

The case was taken to court by Superintendent McClain of the humane society. He testified as to conditions in the home.

HOOVER PLANS TRAFFIC AID.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—"What can city planning contribute to public safety and accident prevention?" The answer to this question is one of the problems which the committee on city planning and zoning of the joint conference on street and highway safety is seeking. The committee recently met with Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who is heading a widespread movement to study means reducing traffic accidents. There will be a national meeting early in the fall, which will be attended by more than a hundred traffic and safety experts in which the results of their investigations and studies will be considered.

DORIS MAKES A QUEER DISCOVERY.

"GRACIOUS goodness!" Doris exclaimed as an insect flew so close to her nose that she could feel the air from its wings. "I thought he was going to settle right on the end of my nose."

"Wouldn't that be funny!" laughed a merry voice, and Doris looked sharply at the wasp sitting on a branch of the rosebush at her side. "Yes, it's I, Mrs. Solitary Wasp, talking to you this very second. You needn't look surprised. And you're not asleep, either," she giggled as Doris reached over and pinched her arm.

"Well, of all things!" exclaimed the astonished Doris. "So you're Mrs. Solitary Wasp? Well, what are you doing? Are you giving Mrs. Spider's children a bath? You seem to be hanging them up to dry on the twigs of the rosebush."

"You can call it a bath if you wish," laughed Mrs. Solitary Wasp as she hung up another spider and went from one to the other of the spiders hanging from the twig to make sure they were safe. "But if so, it's the last bath they will take."

"The last one," Doris repeated. "I shouldn't like being hung on a twig like that. I guess they don't like it either. Tell me, Mrs. Solitary Wasp, why do you do that? Are you saving them until you grow hungry?"

"I mean to put every one of those spiders in my burrow when I get it finished," laughed Mrs. Solitary Wasp. "You see, I belong to the family of solitary wasps. I don't live in a wasp-inn like the one you see hanging in the old elm tree down by the brook. I don't like a crowded place like that. Besides, I can't stand the swinging of my nest while I'm laying eggs. I burrow in the ground. Come down here under the bush and you'll see my nest."

She flew down under the rosebush and Doris, lying down on her stomach, peeked into the burrow.

"Some of my relatives dig their burrows first, then catch their spiders," Mrs. Solitary Wasp buzzed, "but I don't. I make sure that I have plenty of food ready to store in my cells first. I go hunting, then if I can find enough spiders to feed to my babies when they are born, I build each egg-cell separately, put in enough spiders for that egg, close it tightly so that ants can't find it and then I dig another and so on until I have a big house."

"But why in the world do you hang your spiders up so high from the ground?" asked Doris. "I should think you'd pile them near your doorway."

"So You're Mrs. Solitary Wasp?"

"That would be fine for the ant family who live just beyond me," laughed Mrs. Solitary Wasp. "No, indeedy. It's hard enough to catch those spiders. I'm not taking any chances of losing them. I know full well that if I hang them on the twigs of that rosebush, I'll get them in the burrow before the ants discover that they are there. Now if you'll excuse me, I'll go back for another."

With these words Mrs. Wasp flew away, and soon returned with another spider, which she carefully hung up. Doris lay there under the bush and watched her until the wasp-burrow was completed and the eggs deposited in their little cells.

Then Mrs. Solitary Wasp sailed away in the bright sunlight and that was the last time Doris ever saw her.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Harry Underwood Is as Perplexed as Madge.

AS the conviction seized me that the eyes of one of the masked cabaret dancers were following my progress around the floor, a little unreasoning shiver made me lose a step in the dance measure I was treading with Harry Underwood.

My escort tightened his arm around me and swung me away from the other dancers to the least crowded portion of the floor.

"What is it?" he asked in a low tone. "Shall we go back to our table?"

His manoeuver had enabled me to regain my grip upon my nerves, and it was with a fierce mental scoring of myself for my folly that I answered with apparent carelessness:

"Indeed, I shall not go back unless you wish it. This dance is too enjoyable to miss a minute of it. Really, I don't know why I shivered. Perhaps someone is walking over my grave." I laughed lightly as I voiced the old superstition.

"Unless I wish it?" He completely ignored everything except my first sentence. "Don't you know that I could go on dancing this with you forever!"

His voice made even the banal words sound sincere and effective, but I was careful to answer them with a jest.

"Please give a thought to our poor feet?" I pleaded, and then, as if the idea had just struck me, I added: "Have you noticed that group of dancers on the dais? How odd for them to be masked!"

"I haven't seen anything in this room that's over three feet away from me," he said significantly, with dancing eyes. "But I'll take a look at them."

He swung me around so that he faced the dais, gave the dancers a perfunctory glance, then turned his eyes back to me.

Harry Teases Madge.

"Old stuff, that," he commented carelessly. "I wonder the management here consents to put out anything savoring so much of the ark. But I suppose they're hard put to it. Before they get through the season on Broadway I suppose they'll revive the Cherry Sisters."

I ventured another furtive glance at the dancers. This time I had no sensation of eyes pursuing me, but the girls were rising from their seats, evidently preparing for their turn. The orchestra blared into the final strains of the dance, and Mr. Underwood guided me back to our table.

"We'll see what our masked friends have to offer," he said as we seated ourselves at the table, and I took out my vanity-case for a peep at the tiny mirror it contained. "But I'll wait for the lipstick and the rouge," he went on with twinkling eyes.

I knew that he expected to get another rise out of me, for his is a nature that revels in teasing, and he knew of old my aversion to such aids to the toilette and their public use, therefore I only drawled demurely:

"You've Grown Worldly!"

"Fortunately for your patience I left everything at home save a powder-puff." I brushed the article I had named over my flushed cheeks, tucked back a strand of hair that had become loosened and put away the vanity-case before I looked again at Mr. Underwood. I found him regarding me quizzically.

"Smooth," he commented with an approving intonation. "Mighty smooth!" he emphasized again. "You've grown worldly-wise since we last dined and danced together. I can remember when it was the easiest thing in the world to bring the flush of anger or embarrassment to your downy cheek. By Jove!"

The exclamation appeared to be jerked out of him, and I followed his eyes to the dais where the masked performers were beginning a graceful but bizarre dance. He had leaned forward in his chair and was intently scrutinizing the dancers.

Suddenly I found the answer to the question I had been conning—the reason for the scrutiny which I was sure one of the performers had given me. The glances had been meant for my companion, not for me.

He was an authority on theatrical matters, and had a wide acquaintance with the people of the stage world. No doubt one or more of the girls knew him. His sudden exclamation and intent scrutiny convinced me that he knew one at least of the graceful figures posturing upon the platform.

I said nothing, however and in another instant he had straightened his figure again, and made the comment I expected.

"I thought for a minute I knew one of those girls," he said, "but I guess I was mistaken."

THE HOME KITCHEN

Four Ways to Turn Vegetables Into Delicious Pickles

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

PICKLED vegetables are very convenient to add to salads in the Winter. Of course each vegetable must be pickled in its season. If this is carefully done, the vegetables keep well. Many of the varieties you will obtain in this way cannot often be purchased in the shops. Be sure before the pickling begins that all your seasonings and spices are fresh. If the vinegar is the least bit cloudy, strain it through a damp piece of cheesecloth. Only porcelain-lined pots should be used for pickle-making. Have jars, fresh new rubbers and labels in readiness.

Pickled Cauliflower.

Select three large heads of cauliflower and separate them into flowerettes. Rinse them in cold water, drain them, then spread them on dishes and sprinkle with salt. Let them stand six hours. Put a large spice-bag filled with cloves, broken cinnamon sticks, peppercorns, a small piece of green ginger root, a blade of mace and half a bay leaf into two quarts of vinegar and boil it gently for a half hour. Drain the cauliflower well from the salt and pack it in a crock, then pour the vinegar mixture over it. Store it in a cool, dry place and in three or four weeks it will be ready for use.

Sweet Pickled Beets.

Select even-sized young beets and boil them as usual until they are tender, then skin them under cold water, trim them and set them aside. Put into the preserve kettle, three pints of vinegar and a pint and a half of sugar. Add a generous spice-bag and let the mixture boil for twenty minutes. Skim it, then add the beets and cook the mass until it is reheated. Put the beets into jars, pour the hot syrup over them and seal them.

Pickled Red Peppers.

Select sweet peppers just as they are turning red. Remove the seed cones and stems, place them in a jar and sprinkle them with salt, allspice and mace. Boil enough vinegar to cover the peppers, then turn it over the peppers. When the mixture is cold, cover the jars tightly with parchment paper and store them in a cool place. The peppers will be ready for use in four weeks. They are valuable for use in Winter salads.

Apple Chutney.

Pare, core [illegible] two and a half pounds of tart apples and place them in the kettle with a pint of vinegar and a pound of brown sugar. Cook the apples until they are reduced to a pulp, then add three-quarters of a pound of seeded raisins, [illegible] half ounce of mustard seed, a half ounce of ground ginger, a quarter ounce of peeled [illegible] and a half [illegible]. Mix these ingredients well, then cover and [illegible] store them in a cool place.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Miss Looker-on

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THE looker-on—do you know her?

I do. I know half-a-dozen lookers-on.

Let's talk about one of them.

This looker-on is a stenographer. She's about forty years old, but dear me, on one of her good days you'd take her not to be an hour over thirty—unless you got too close to her.

A figure that is the very latest thing in figures, straight up and down like a lath; a complexion that costs a pretty penny in a smart beauty shop, hair henna-rinsed, don't you know?—not red, exactly, but as close to it as you can get and be safe.

And clothes! Well, they look as if she'd come over from Paris this very minute with a trunk full of dresses each prettier than the other!

Her hats of the newest idea—every time! Not always becoming, not always practical, and always very expensive. But dear me, you might as well be dead as be out of the fashion, so she pays twenty dollars for a hat—five dollars down and five dollars a month!

That's the way she buys her shoes, too—two dollars down and two dollars a month—and she'd die rather than take a step out of the house in a pair of cotton stockings!

Silk's the word—the finest, silkiest, sheerest silk at that!

And the shoes that go with those stockings—the heels are so high they are like stilts, and the toes are so short that the poor little feet look as if someone had chopped them off somewhere.

Anything to Seem "In"

That's when short shoes are the fashion. When long shoes are "in" the Looker-On has long, slim feet, no matter.

She doesn't walk, she teeters.

She doesn't talk, she chatters.

She doesn't smile, she simpers.

She doesn't eat a good hearty, sensible meal once in six months.

If she did that she might put on a pound or two, and heavens, what a fate!

On Saturday afternoons, when she is off duty, what do you think she does?

Go to see a picture?

Step out to the park for a breath of fresh air?

Run in to see an old friend and have a good old-fashioned gossip?

Curl up in a corner somewhere with a book and a box of fresh cherries?

Go and take somebody's baby out for an airing?

Go and read to some one who's ill?

Not she!

She goes to a smart hotel to tea, and there she sits alone listening to the jazz orchestra and looking on at life.

She notices all the new hats and sees all the new gowns, she knows who's in love with who, and which mamma is maneuvering her daughter into a marriage with which rich young man.

She can tell you just when the rich young man is going to begin to struggle, and she knows who's who and what's what, I can tell you.

She wouldn't order anything but "the smart thing" for tea—no, not to save your life or even her own!

She's "in the know," and she wants people to know it.

She has the list of society buds by heart, and she could get out a social register from memory any day in the week.

She can tell you when the So-and-so's went abroad and what they did with their silver when they went and how long they'll be gone and just what poor relations they are who've taken the So-and-so's house to look after it until they get home.

And nobody knows her and nobody sees her.

The girls in her own condition won't be bored with her.

The society girls never heard of her. The society matrons would stare if she should try to speak to them.

Men? How can she have any attention from men?

Alone, All, All Alone!

The fellows in the office have the time of their lives making fun of her—the young fellows!

The men of her own age are all either married or going to be married. No poor man dares to have anything to do with her, and as far as the average rich man is concerned, he doesn't know she exists.

And there she is, the Looker-On—poor thing!—in this world full of people all alone!

The strangest thing is that she thinks she's getting the best out of life.

I'll warrant that when she comes to die somebody will find her burial clothes all laid out and ready. And if she could only get her funeral notice into the paper next to someone who really belongs—I believe she'd die happy.

Poor Looker-On! What a mess, what a silly, stupid, intolerable mess, she's making of her life that might be honestly wholesome and sincerely happy!

How You May Enhance Your Height and Beauty

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

WHY is it that so many of us who are tall wish to be shorter and vice versa?

This is a difficult question to answer. It seems that a trait of human nature is to wish for the things we are not or have not. And it follows, unfortunately, that in doing this we are likely to forget the things we have which others lack.

I am thinking at the present moment of the question of stature.

Invariably, the tall woman wishes she were a bit shorter and the woman who is not so tall wishes she could add an inch or so to her height.

Of course, the possessor of an ideal figure is saved the strain of worrying about stature. But there are many whose figures are not ideal in their measurements.

For the benefit of these, I want to give a few practical suggestions. For in the way we dress and the way we carry ourselves and the kind of heels we wear, we can do much to add height or to take away the impression of excessive height.

If you are taller than you want to be, avoid dresses with up and down stripes and high heels and hats with trimming that sticks up so as to add inches to your apparent height.

Rather, choose frocks whose trimming or stripes follow horizontal lines instead of vertical. Never wear high heels and choose hats that affect flat trimming or trimming that takes downward slopes.

The woman who is short needs to follow just the opposite course from her taller sister. Vertical trimming, such as long lines of buttons or of lace or banding gives her the taller appearance which she desires so much.

It is also possible to actually increase the height by stretching. The following method is excellent to either add an inch or two of height or to straighten out a back that has become too bowed by continued incorrect posture.

In the morning before you get out of bed stretch yourself straight out, catching your heels on the edge of the mattress or on a rung of the bed. If your bed is not long enough for the exercise, you can stretch out on the floor.

Now, stretch your arms straight out above your head to ascertain just how far back you can reach.

Next, place a book, or some such object a few inches further than the point you are able to reach.

The exercise is simply to try your best to stretch further and further until you can reach the object. As you can see, the continued stretchings will enable you to actually reach further than you could at first.

Keep this up every day.

Advice to Girls ☙ By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Recently we had a very fine gentleman in our home for a few weeks as a boarder. After he had gone a few days he wrote me a very nice letter, thanking me for the nice time he had while in our home. He wrote nothing about an answer. Should I have answered, or just accepted it as a letter of courtesy?

JUST IN DOUBT.

JUST IN DOUBT: It will be only courteous for you to write a short note to the young man, acknowledging the receipt of his letter and thanking him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I have been going with a young man for over two years. We both seem to like each other very much. He is considered good looking. All the girls run after him and I am jealous. How may I overcome this? We have had many quarrels just over this and are having one now. My parents like him. How may I win his love again? There is a girl trying to break our friendship. Is there any way I can stop her?

MISS JEALOUS.

MISS JEALOUS: Unless you overcome the disagreeable fault of jealousy you are likely to lose all your friends, my dear. Remember that you have no right to try to control the friendship of any of your friends. Since you are not engaged to this young man, there is every reason why you and he should have many friends, both young men and women, and freely enjoy their companionship. You should be glad that he is good-looking and popular. Just be happy and enjoy as much friendship as he accords you.

The best way to prevent losing this young man's friendship is to be sweet and natural when you are with him and to really feel happy because he has so many friends.

Why not ask him to your home some evening and have a friendly little talk? I feel sure that in this way you will be able to adjust matters.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

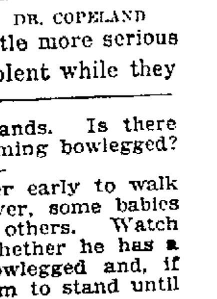
What Rest Does in Acute Infectious Gastritis

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.



DR. COPELAND

EVERY one of us has at some time or other suffered from stomachache. We all know the discomfort of it and how miserable it makes one feel.

There is a form of stomachache which has a sudden onset and is very severe while it lasts. This is acute infectious gastritis.

Decomposed food, spoiled fruit, poor milk and infected water are the most common sources of infection.

Many persons, even some doctors, consider acute infectious gastritis to be ptomaine poisoning. It is a little more serious than that because the symptoms are so much more violent while they last that the consequent prostration is that much greater.

In gastritis there is high temperature, rapid pulse, thirst, nausea and decrease in the gastric juices which causes great retching. Following the decline of these acute symptoms there is great prostration, which may continue for a few days or even several weeks.

The first thing to do at the onset of this trouble is to empty the stomach of all its contents. This may be accomplished by drinking large quantities of soda bicarbonate water, or a weak solution of permanganate of potash. A few crystals of the permanganate dissolved in a glassful of warm water will make a cherry solution.

In extreme cases the doctor may find it necessary to empty the stomach by means of a stomach pump. This is a very simple procedure and will usually give immediate relief.

Until the acute condition has passed the stomach should be kept empty. For nourishment enemas of milk and eggs, black coffee or other liquids may be given. The doctor will advise about these if he considers it necessary.

When food is given the change from liquid to solid food should be gradual. At the slightest return of the trouble all food should be withheld until the symptoms disappear. For the thirst small pieces of ice may be given, but it is best as far as possible not to give water.

When the serious trouble is over great care must be taken of the general health. Every day the patient should be kept in a well-ventilated room flooded with sunshine if possible. Then as the health is restored daily trips outdoors will be helpful.

Fatigue must be avoided and short rests taken during the day. In this way the return of good health will be rapid and no return of the trouble need be feared.

It is always wise to give much thought to the food you eat and drink, especially during hot weather.

Answers to Health Questions

H. B. Q.—I have several moles on my face, how can I have them removed?

2.—How can I reduce my limbs and ankles?

A.—Moles may be removed by means of the electric needle. This must be done by an expert.

2.—It is difficult to reduce one portion of the body without reducing the entire body. However, exercise such as walking may help. For general weight reduction send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and restate your question.

* * *

MRS. T. J. W. Q.—My baby, twenty months old, has whooping cough. How long does it last?

A.—Whooping cough lasts between six and eight weeks.

* * *

ANXIOUS MOTHER. Q.—My eight-months-old baby pulls himself to his feet and stands. Is there danger of his becoming bowlegged?

A.—This is rather early to walk and stand. However, some babies walk sooner than others. Watch the baby to see whether he has a tendency to be bowlegged and, if so, do not allow him to stand until he is a little older and his legs are stronger.

* * *

MRS. H. E. LaB. Q.—What is a good soap to use in shampooing the hair?

A.—Castile soap and warm water make a good shampoo.

* * *

C. T. Q.—I am a girl nineteen years of age and still have four of my upper baby teeth. What would you advise me to do to remedy this condition?

A.—You should consult a dentist for an examination and advice.

* * *

MRS. S. J. E. Q.—What exercises will enlarge the lower limbs?

A.—Any exercise which involves the use of the muscles of the legs—walking, running, tennis, dancing, may help you.

* * *

J. K. Q.—Is it dangerous to digestion to drink water with meals?

A.—This practice is not dangerous, but it may be better to drink water between meals.

* * *

L. V. M. Q.—Would you please tell me what causes the tip of my nose to be red and how I can remedy this condition?

A.—Indigestion, improper diet and poor circulation might be the source of the trouble. Find the cause and the treatment will probably suggest itself.

* * *

WORRIED. Q.—How can I have a scar, caused by carbolic acid, removed?

A.—If the scar is not very deep you can have it removed by X-ray treatments.

This Effective Costume Combines Shell Pink and Brown.

A SHELL pink satin slip makes foundation for the softly feminine evening costume shown above. Over this is a dress of shell pink chiffon and both of these are scalloped and bound at the edges.

[illegible] lace in a [illegible] shade of cocoa brown is applied to the chiffon skirt in deeply pointed scallops. Taffeta ribbon in the two colors finishes the waistline.

The becoming little hat is of lace in a soft cocoa brown.

Tomorrow's

HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, JULY 22.

A most auspicious planetary rulership prevails on this day, fostering and promoting all manner of activities especially in the direction of new plans and projects. There may be advantageous renewal of contracts and all manner of writings and publishing should thrive. The finances are fortified by a most benignant Jupiter with Mercury, Neptune and Uranus favorable. There may be a change or journey of splendid advantage. Avoid irritability and worry.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an important year with increase of business and money. There may be important change or new projects—all under the most propitious rule of the planets. Don't worry or fear. A child born on this day will have an adventurous career with varied experiences, and will rise in life to good position.

PROGRESS IN DISCUSSIONS

ALLIED DIPLOMATS HOLD MEETINGS OVER WEEK-END.

Kellogg Attends Gathering of Delegation Heads, at Invitation of Prime Minister MacDonald.

LONDON, July 21.—The committees of experts of the allied conference carried out intensive discussions over the week-end, making progress which virtually assures a plenary session by Tuesday.

It now is expected the German delegates will arrive late this week, altho no invitation had been sent up to noon today.

Ambassador Kellogg, who is the American representative in the conference, attended the meeting of delegation heads at No. 10 Downing street at 10:30 a. m. today, on the invitation of Prime Minister MacDonald. It is understood the leaders discussed important points of the decisions reached by the committees in their week-end meeting.

This morning's conference in Downing street was attended by the "big five" of the gathering—Prime Minister MacDonald, Ambassador Kellogg, Premier Herriot, of France, Premier Theunis, of Belgium and Minister De Stefani, of Italy. When the meeting broke up shortly after noon it was understood the leaders had decided to hold a plenary session Tuesday in the event the second committee of the general conference completes its report by that time.

BERLIN, July 21.—London and Paris reportes that the allied conference in the British capital is nearing the conclusion of satisfactory agreements aroused considerable optimism here today. News that Germany probably would be invited to send delegates to the conference this week, was especially welcomed.

The nationalist press declares any invitation to Germany to participate in the conference will mean nothing more than that the German delegates will be told to sign on the dotted line but the socialists are more hopeful. The government, it was learned, is prepared to send foreign minister Stresemann to London as head of a German delegation just as soon as an invitation arrives.

RECEIVER SAYS NOT LIABLE

Surety Company Trying to Recover on Bond for Safety of Bank Deposit.

The state guaranty fund commission is contesting in supreme court the claim of the United States Fidelity & Guaranty company for the repayment of $22,000, a loss that the company sustained by the failure of the Kilgore State bank. J. A. Buntin, as Indian agent at Rosebud, had that amount of money on deposit with the Kilgore bank when it was closed September 7, 1921. To secure that deposit the bank had paid the surety company a premium of $125. Now the company demands that it be put in the place of the depositor, and its loss made good out of the guaranty fund.

The receiver contends that while the form is that of a suretyship the contract is in essence that of insurance, and that having for a premium taken the risk the company should suffer the loss itself and not try to make the fund pay it It is insisted that this would be equivalent to swindling the bank, as it would be taking $125 from it and giving it nothing in return. The receiver says that either the surety or the fund must stand the loss, and as the company secured pay for its risk it ought to stand the loss.

The further claim is made that because the company got from the bank $125 in addition to the 5 per cent interest that Buntin drew on his daily balances, this was excess interest and makes it, under court holdings, a loan and not a deposit.

HIS WIFE-TO-BE

A Love Affair in which the Man Grew Indifferent.

By Fay Stevenson

Copyright, 1924, (New York World), Press Publishing Company.

Synopsis.

It was always understood right from their school days that Letty Condon and Bertie Graham would wed. All their circle of young friends looked upon them as "engaged." Bertie showered Letty with gifts and attention, had a good position as a salesman and everybody was waiting anxiously to receive their announcement cards. Then Bertie's love grew cold—but this is where Letty's feminine cleverness comes to the front. Begin this story and see how a girl can win back a lover who suddenly becomes "indifferent" without actually running after him.

A Telephone Apology.

Altho Letty knew the break was coming, knew perfectly well that Bertie Graham's love was getting cold and that he longed for the companionship of other girls, it was a shock, nevertheless, to see him gallantly escorting another girl out of a theatre. At first she made up her mind she would never speak to him again; then she thought of writing him a burning letter, and finally she went to sleep with very red eyes and the resolution that she would gain his love back if it took the rest of her life.

Aunt Sally returned to her home town and Letty's mother began to wonder why Bertie didn't appear.

"It must have been almost a week since Bertie has crossed our threshold," she said one evening after dinner. "You needn't have given so much of your time to Aunt Sally, dear. Your father and I would have taken her about town. You can't treat men that way. They hate to be put off. By the way, did Bertie send you any flowers this week?"

Letty had borne her "shock" of seeing "the other girl" in silnece, but it was almost too much to have to be questioned. She nearly broke down and was just on the verge of telling her troubles when a caller took her mother into the next room and the telephone summoned her. It was Bertie.

It was plainly a duty call. Bertie seemed to feel that he owed Letty an apology because she had seen him with another girl. But in reality Letty frankly felt that he owed their friends, their own little circle, an apology for, after all, they were the ones who naturally "supposed" they were engaged. Her quick intuition told her that to accept the apology, make him live up to everybody's natural supposition that they were engaged because they had always been seen together would be fatal. Let him think he was free and what a difference it would make!

"Please don't be silly about it," she told him. "Of course, I wasn't surprised to see you with a girl, Bertie. She looked like a very nice sort of person, too. By the way, I have a new friend down at the office, a chap who has just come to town and I think it would be jolly for once to break away from our set and have a little game of bridge or any good four-handed game. Want to bring your friend over next Friday evening to meet my out-of-town chap?"

Letty heard Bertie give the boyish chuckle of his and the deal was closed. As a matter of fact she detested this new girl who had usurped her place; she hated her with all of a woman's jealousy, but she knew if it hadn't been that girl it would have been some one else. Bertie wanted to meet girls and it would be far better to have him meet them in her home and have her mark of approval than to just drift out of her life, perhaps forever.

It hurt her just a little to see he took no interest in the chap who had just come to town. But, after all, she did not wish to make him jealous, her one aim was to keep him from being jealous herself.

DISPUTE OVER CERTIFICATE

Neligh Man Thinks Guaranty Fund Owes Him $13,000 for His Deposits.

Receiver Folda of the Atlas State bank of Nelight, and J. J. Melick have taken their dispute to the supreme court for determination as to whether Melick loses all, none or only a part of the $13,000 he had on deposit with the bank when it folded its hands.

The court below held that Melick was entitled to recover a total of $8,833 from the fund. Part of this represented the balance in his open checking account and the remainder a certificate of deposit liability of which the receiver challenged. The court ordered that the money be withheld until such time as it is determined what amount of money Melick must pay in the form of an assessment on the 200 shares of stock in the bank that he held, to make good claims against it.

The other $4,000 represents a certificate of deposit that the court says was clearly given in payment of an indebtedness of the bank to Melick and represented no deposit of money or its equivalent. Melick's story was that the banker in charge took $4,000 of liberty bonds that he owned and which were left with the bank for safe keeping, and that it had several times agreed to buy him liberty bonds in place of them. Having failed to do so, the bank finally issued a certificate of deposit for the amount. Melick contends the bonds represented an equivalent of money.

WALSH LEAVES GROUP

Will Be Succeeded as Chairman of Democratic Senatorial Committee by Senator Jones.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21.—Sneator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts, today announced his retirement as chairman of the democratic senatorial committee. He will be succeeded by Senator Jones, New Mexico.

Walsh, in resigning said he was following the precedent that the position should be held only thru one congressional election.

The committee's work is largely advisory and cooperative with the democratic national committee. Its chief function is to aid party candidates for the senate.

WORKING ON HIS SPEECH

DAVIS HAS RESTFUL WEEK-END AT PENOBSCOT BAY.

Goes Over Mass of Correspondence With Secretaries and Begins Labor on Material for Acceptance Address.

DARK HARBOR, Me., July 21.—Preparatory work on his speech accepting the presidential nomination of the democratic party was started by John W. Davis today.

Freshened by a week-end of golf and the crisp air of the Maine coast, the candidate plunged into work in the best of spirits. The big studio of Charles Dana Gibson at his home on a 700 acre island in Penobscot bay, was converted into a studio for the nominee and fitted with every comfort.

Davis went over a mass of correspondence with his secretaries this morning, and began work on the material which he will incorporate in his acceptance speech at Clarksburg, W. Va., next month.

Davis has not decided on the principal points of his speech and may not do so, until the end of the week.

He was to talk several points over with Frank Polk at luncheon today.

Davis did not learn until late yesterday of Senator Wheeler's acceptance of the independent vice presidential candidacy with Senator La-Follette. He had no comment to make on the independent selection, but indicated it was expected.

C. C. PARMELE BANKRUPT

Plattsmouth Business Man Files Schedules Showing Quarter of a Million Indebtedness.

Charles C. Parmele of Plattsmouth filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition Monday embodying the largest figures of any such instrument filed in Lincoln this year. Debts were given as $280,595 and assets $104,710. The latter includes realty valued at $4,500; securities and notes, $2,500; insurance policies, $8,500, and personal property $88,700. The personal property consists of a one-fourth interest in the Baracinova mine and ranch in the state of Sonora, Mexico, figured at $75,000: and a note and mortgage on the 8,800 Parmele ranch in Custer county.

Secured claims totalling $170,468 are held by the Merchants National bank, Omaha, the largest creditor; the First National bank of Plattsmouth and the Plattsmouth State bank; John Ganer of Cedar Creek, the New England Life company of Omaha, E. J. Richey and Miss Vera Leonard. Unsecured claims include $7,500 owing to Byron Clarke and Jesse L. Root of Omaha for legal services, and an assessment of $10,400 on 104 shares of the failed bank of Cass county.

Much of Mr. Parmele's indebtedness grew out of the defunct Auto Power company and the operation of the Parmele ranch. A large amount he says should be paid by J. P. Falter, a former partner in business, and George W. Snyder, with whom he signed various notes.

Decorating the HOME--an art!

ONE in which we have delved rather thoroly. One in which every home-maker is interested. Many have definite ideas yet wish aid in expressing them; others have hazy plans which they desire developed; still others want the entire responsibility taken from their shoulders. In any instance our home decorating service is ready to help.

NOW IS THE OPPORTUNE TIME TO MAKE PLANS FOR FALL THAT WE MAY PUT DRAPERIES IN WORK AND HAVE THEM READY WHEN YOU WISH.

We have a very considerable number of commissions which we are completing now for fall delivery. Forethought of this type, gives time for definite planning, the ordering and obtaining of proper fabrics and colors, time for careful workmanship and makes for satisfaction with the finished work.

In planning a home, your personal tastes are to be consulted of course, but the type of house in which you live or which you are building should control to an extent the type of furnishings. For instance, a Dutch Colonial home should have a keynote of Dutch Colonial influence, or modernized Dutch Colonial features.

A RECENT STYLE NOTE is the Spanish influence, expressed in striped fabrics and suitable for many types of homes.

The flood of the latter part of last week did much damage in the vicinity of Ravenna. It took out the highway bridge over the Loup river east of the town and a considerable part of the highway grade across the river bottom. Smaller bridges on other roads were taken out and in many places cornfields were inundated and much damaged.

Ella D. Brookings, Ashland, was granted a decree of divorce from George J. Brookings, by District Judge Stewart Monday forenoon on grounds of extreme cruelty and non-support. The couple were married in Lincoln, March 14, 1923. There are no children. By the terms of the decree Mrs. Brookings' former name, Ella D. Sheffer, was restored.

Governor Bryan has issued a requisition for the return of Helen Ray, George Case and Irvin Newberry, alias Bradshaw, who are charged with robbing a Standard Oil company filling station operated by John H. Carmody at Fremont, May 25. The thieves got $161. The three persons charged with the crime are under arrest at Des Moines.

The state board of equalization obtained an auorum Monday at the call of State Tax Commissioner Smith and when thru the formality of meeting for equalization purposes on the day appointed by law. No action will be taken until Wednesday when the board will hear protests from Burlington and Rock Island railroad officials and county assessors and boards. The county board which has reduced land values for assessment purposes will be given a chance to show cause why their decreases should not be disallowed by the state board.

Frank Gion's $41.000 damage suit against the Burlington and Lew L. Ingalls has been removed to the federad court from the district court of Hamilton county. Mr. Gion was injured in a crossing accident in Marquette last November 30, and blames the railroad for not maintaining such warning devices as the ordinances provide, and the engineer for watching a crowd at a sale instead of watching the track. The crossing where the accident occurred is several feet below grade, the petition sets forth, and is partly obscured by an embankment extending for 300 feet along the track. Mr. Gion maintains thath eslowed up, looked and listened before driving his car onto the crossing, but as the engine was coasting and made little noise, and no warning was given, he was struck and his car demolished. Mr. Gion is a former wrestler, now a brick mason, carpenter and contractor.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

E. M. Westervelt, industrial commissioner of the Burlington, has returned from a trip thru the Big Horn basin, where he made addresses at a number of meetings of farmers and town people, discussing the problems of the farmer and the problems of the railroads. He spoke at Cody, Manderson, Worland and Basin. Crop conditions in the Basin country are excellent. The movement of Yellowstone Park tourists thru the Cody gateway is heavy this year and the company's hotel at Cody is doing a big business. Oil business out of Casper is not so heavy now, the production having been curtailed sometime ago because of market conditions. About twenty-five cars of iron ore are being handled daily out of the Guernsey district. Sheepmen in the central Wyoming country are happy over prospects. On the northern cattle ranges there is a vast amount of feed, but the number of cattle grazing is much less this year than in many years past. In the Nebraska sandhill country the ranges are better stocked.

COST OF NEW YORK TRIP

Cochran of Capitol Commission, One of Four Attending, Presents Claim for $247.68.

Secretary Roy Cochran of the department of public works, also a member of the capitol commission, has filed a claim for $247.68 expense incurred in a trip to New York. Governor Bryan, Judge W. H. Thompson, and W. E. Hardy ,the other members of the commission who held a meeting in New York and conferred with the assistants of Architect Goodhue, deceased, in regard to continuing work on the capitol, have not yet filed expense accounts. Governor Bryan went primarily to see what the national democratic convention thought about him for president and will not file a claim for expenses. He had announced also that he intended to spend a vacation in New York.

The claim of Mr. Cockran includes $69 the cost of room rent for himself and Mr. Hardy at the hotel Pennsylvania from June 22 to 27 inclusive. It has not yet been approved by State Auditor Marsh. Deputy Auditor Frank B. Honza asked Secretary of State Pool Monday if he intends to pass favorably upon it when it reaches his office. Mr. Pool said he did not know what he would do until it comes to him.

The Cochran claim includes $30.61 for Pullman fare to and from New York and Washington, $114.82 for railroad fare, $28 for meals, $69 for lodging and $5.25 for taxi hire. Mr Cochrane left Lincoln, June 21 and returned July 2. The tentative agreement with the architect's assistants for finishing the capitol, entered into at the New York conference, saves the state $75,000, according to Governor Bryan's statement.

Alleged Deserter Taken.

COLUMBUS, Neb., July 21.— John H. Knight, of Fort Omaha, alleged army deserter, was arrested here after being forced off a train on which he with a number of others, were beating their way. The arrest was made by Special Agent Forrest Perrine and a local officer. According to Chief Lehman, Knight is supposed to have deserted the Omaha Fort in April. Military authorities in Omaha have been notified of the arrest.

Norfolk Is Visited by Hard Wind With Similar Storm Accompanied by Heavy Rain at Fremont.

OMAHA, July 21. Continued rains, accompanied in places by heavy winds which assumed proportions of near-tornadoes, added to the misery caused by last week's floods in central Nebraska, reports received here today indicated.

Most of the greatest damage done by today's and last nights' storms was in the vicinity of Norfolk, where a hard wind blew trees, wires and rubbish into the streets, breaking windows and did other damage.

High winds and heavy rains were reported at Fremont, while Hastings and Grand Island reported heavy winds but only a small amount of rain.

So far as known only one man has lost his life as a result of the floods. Dave Pivus, fifty, a farmer living near Fremont, was drowned while trying to swim the bankful Elkhorn rover, to join a picnic party.

The Loup river, which cut a new channel directly down the main street of Pleasanton, was reported subsiding today. Considerable water is still sweeping thru the town, however.

Buildings at Pleasonton were undermined and almost washed away. Paving and sidewalks have vanished. The concrete block jail lies almost buried in a deep hole dug by the flood. Nearly 1,000 feet of Union Pacific track was washed away. The entire plant of the Tolefsen-Eliot Lumber company was swept down the Loup river. The Worth grain elevator was wrecked, and the water works plant is almost a total loss.

Damage at Pleasanton is conservatively estimated $125,000. Farmers in that vicinity report an almost complete loss of crops which will add another $100,000 to the total.

But despite the great damage, Pleasanton citizens were busily engaged in trying to repair the work of the flood today.

The Wood river and Buffalo creek tributaries of the Loup, were out of their banks and did considerable damage near Gibbon and west of Elm Creek. More than 2,000 feet of railroad tracks have been washed away in that vicinity, bridges were swept down stream and the Lincoln highway is impassable.

The Loup changed its channel in several places and at one time cut a new channel so swiftly that Roy Whittaker and Henry Dickerson, living four miles west of Pleasanton were cut off and forced to remain in a big tree from 1 p. m. to 1 a. m. Sunday, when they were rescued by boat. Many cattle on their farm were drowned.

The storms severely hampered the air mail service, both the east and the west bound pilots being forced to turn back last night and losing many hours.

AWARD FOR STATE EMPLOYE

Laborer Hired by Regents Accidentally Hurt—Compensation for Bad Luck of Painter.

D. D. Crum, employed last March as a laborer by the university regents has been given an award of $15 a week for eight and three-fourths weeks under the compensation law. The award was made Monday by Commissioner L. B. Frye. It was given as compensation for 25 per cent permanent partial disability of the index finger of the left hand. Crum was drilling stone when the drill slipped and hit his finger. The accident occurred March 31. He was for some time unable to do hard work and with other men was discharged June 1. Medical expense is also allowed by the commissioner.

The commissioner has given R. R. Marsh of Omaha a double barreley award in that two different contracting painters who hired him are directed to pay the award of $15 a week from April 30 until further orders. Marsh stepped off a porch upon a pile of dirt while painting for August Burdin. He sprained his ankle but kept on working and was discharged. Later he was employed by O. C. Sexton and again hurt his ankle by an accidental fall from a step ladder scaffold. Later he worked for another painter but was discharged because of his disability. The commissioner finds Marsh is suffering from charcot ankle, a diseased condition of the joint. The commissioner directs Burdin to pay $11.25 a week and Sexton to pay $3.75 a week.

TO GIVE CANARY CONCERT

Local Bird Club Secures Champion Rollers for Concert to Be Given Tuesday.

The Nebraska Roller Canary club has secured five champion Roller canaries for a canary concert which will be given Tuesday evening at the red room of the Y. M. C. A. The birds are the property of the International Roller Canary association of which the local organization is a member and the birds are being sent on a tour of the larger cities. The birds came to Lincoln from Louisville, K., and are reputed to be prize winners in expositions both in Kentucky and Chicago.

The birds travel in their own specially constructed home and are sent to the director general of the bird club in each city. No admission will be charged for the entertainment and no birds will be offered for sale. The concert is offered to all bird lovers as a demonstration of bird music. The feathered quintet will broadcast a program from station WJAB Wednesday evening.

WALT MASON

Dreams.

Aunt Jemima dries the dishes, as she plies her rag she wishes that she was a famous singer, singing for a thousand bones; she can see herself resplendent with a sunburst and a pendant, filling all a noble building with her wealth of golden tones; she can see the crowd applauding, saying that she knocks the wadding from the best and greatest singers of the present and the past, and her joy is all-pervading; in her visions she is wading from one triumph to another, so her happiness is vast. With gee-whizzes and odds-fishes she consigns the blamed old dishes to the darkest, furthest limbo, where the old world's junk is thrown; she aspires to something higher, and such chores disgust and try her, and she hates her humble station as she plies her rag alone. Julia Ginger is a singer, and men say she is a dinger, and they pay unholy prices just to hear the damsel sing; does this lovely Julia capture all there is of human rapture is her life a round of pleasure, is she happy as a king? She is angry in the morning, for a critic's idle scorning puts her lower down than Melba, hardly up to Ellen Yaw, and she's rattled at the nooning, for some rival has been crooning, at another music temple, in a voice without a flaw. She is snorting in the twilight, and she tries to smash the skylight, for her name appears in letters, on the bills, an inch too small; and perhaps at times she wishes she were busy drying dishes, far from all the tribulations of the folks who hire a hall.

raises the point that the present law relating to murder is invalid and inoperative, because it was passed before the new state constitution was adopted. He insists that the new constitution makes imperative the passage of a new law on homicide.

SAYS HUSBAND HAD RIGHT

Law Enjoined on Him Duty to Protect His Wife From Her Creditors.

The right of a husband to protect his wife from her creditors in his will is argued in a brief filed with the supreme court Monday in a case where Edith Hope is trying to secure from Anna S. Twarling and her children satisfaction for a $6.000 judgment she obtained in supreme court some years ago. She was formerly the daughter-in-law of Mrs. Twarling, and the judgment was adamges because of the action of the latter in separating her husband's affections from her.

The day after the judgment Twerling made his will, cutting off his wife entirely, and leaving everything he had to his five children, with the injunction that they care for their mother as long as she lived. Mrs. Twarling, under the law, had the right to refuse to take under the will and could have demanded her regular share, but she acquieced.

Her ex-daughter-in-law now says taht it was all a conspiracy to defeat the collection of her judgment. The other side frankly admits that this was the purpose, but claims that it was perfectly lawful; that the law requires of his wife that he protect her from penury and want, and that if he had not done this all of her property would have been taken by her creditor. Neither the husband nor wife have ever admitted the justice of the claim, and it is contended that to have allowed her to be thus stripped of her property would have thwarted thep urpose of the statutes. Not having to do with any property that Mrs. Twarling owned, it is claimed that the usual creditor's bill cannot be invoked to secure satisfaction of the judgment.

NEWBRANCH FOR GOVERNOR

Proposed as Compromise in Interests of So-Called Harmony Among Democrats.

Harvey Newbranch, editor of the Omaha World Herald, has been suggested as a compromise candidate for governor on the democratic ticket. His name was heralded a at the state house bright and early Monday morning as the one who might possibly be induced in the interest of harmony to accept a nomination from the democratic state committee next Wednesday when Governor Bryan gets thru with the nomination bestowed upon him at the primaries.

Mr. Newbranch is known thruout the country for his forceful editorial pen, which some times hits the Bryans as well as others in the way. He is remembered by many people as the editor who believes in the efficacy of whisky as a medicine and who gave a graphic description of distracted parents running up and down the streets of Omaha crying aloud for some of the stuff to ward off or cure pneumonia or influenza or whatever happened to be the matter with their children.

SUGGEST CHANGE IN AUTO PARKING RULE

Retailers in Chamber of Commerce Would Extend Two-Hour Restriction Until 7 in the Evening.

The retail trade subdivison of the chamber of commerce adopted a resolution Monday noon asking the directors to recommend to the city council a change in the traffic ordinance, extending the period of the two hour parking rule until 7 p. m. The restriction now goes off at 5 o'clock.

This action followed a talk by Mayor Zehrung, who deplored the general disregard forthis and other features of the city's traffic rules, and asked the retailers to take a part in creating public sentiment for law obedience.

"The only solution for the problem, unless this change in the general sentiment can be brought about, is to take away the offenders' cars and lock them up," the mayor said. "Fines don't make a bit of difference. It makes me sick to pick up the paper morning after morning and read the names of those who are fined for breaking the traffic laws. I won't say they're the best people —I was wrongly quoted to that effect theother day—but they are people who know enough to have made money and to run a business successfully, and we should expect them to have enough intelligence to obey these laws. If we can get them to see it that way, the situation will improve; if we can't, we must take away their cars."

The mayor is making the same appeal to various organizations, and one of them, the Lions club, has undertaken to keep its own members' names off the police blotter.

BOY BANDITS TO KANSAS

Pair Captured in University Place Last Week Returned to Spearville.

Ben Shaw, seventeen, and Earl Ray, twenty-four, boy bandits arrested a week ago in University Place, have been returned to Spearville, Kas., to face trial.

To State Sheriff Carroll, they admitted connection with four house robberies, three in Kansas and one in Nebraska, after stealing a Ford touring car at Spearville. Both have records. Shaw admitted that he served time in a reformatory while Ray admitted that he was twice committed.

Failure to have a license plate attached to the car in their possession caused their arrest in University Place. Much stolen plunder, including a number of guns, was found in the car.

Not Surprised.

Few Worlds Remain For Our Athletes to Conquer

MOST OF THE MAJOR SPORTS COMPLETED

Triumph of Helen Wills and Vincent Richards on Courts Adds More Glory to That Already Won by U. S.

PARIS, July 21.—(United Press.)—Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, U. S. A., today defeated Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet, the French pair, in the finals of the men's doubles on the Olympice courts, ensuring the United States a clean sweep in all the Olympic tennis

Brugnon and Cochet won the first set, 6-4, and the American pair evened matters by taking the second 6-2. Richards and Hunter then took the third set 6-3, but dropped the fourth 2-6. The final set went to the United States, 6-3.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

PARIS, July 21.—Having added the tennis, swimming and boxing championship to the already long list of titles won at the eighth Olympiad, America's athletes looked about them today with few world's left to conquer.

Our men's doubles and mixed doubles teams hoped to make a clean sweep of the Olympic courts and add their titles to those won by Helen Wills, Vincent Richards, and Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman.

Big Sports Almost Done.

Aside from tennis, the major sports were practically completed.

Triumphs by eighteen-year-old Helen Wills, and young Vincent Richards in the finals of the women's and men's singles Sunday, gave the United States a certain claim on the Olympic championship. Miss Wills beat Mlle. Vlasto, a diminutive French girl of Greek extraction, 6-2, 6-2, in a match in which the American girl was always the winner. Richards took the measure of Henric Cochet, of France, 6-4, 6-4, 5-7, 4-6, 6-2.

By winning thirteen final events in the Olympic swimming meet at Les Tourelles, out of seventeen contested, the American mermen and mermaids won the championship with something to spore. The final standing showed the United States leading with 217 points, while Sweden, which was second, had but 58. Great Britain scored 50, Australia 35, France 17, Belgium 13, and there was a smattering of point scores on the part of ten other nations.

A List of Champions.

The new Olympic champions among the Americans are:

100 meter free style—Johnny Weismuller
100 meter back stroke—Warren Kealoha.
200 meter breast stroke—Robert D. Skelton.
400 meter free style—Johnny Weismuller.
Fancy high diving—Albert White.
Springboard fancy diving—Albert White.

WOMEN CHAMPIONS.

100 meters free style—Ethel Lackie.
100 meters back stroke—Sybil Baurer.
400 meters free style—Martha Nornelius.
Fancy high driving—Elizabeth Becker.
Plain high diving—Carolina Smith.

The American swimmers broke four world's records and set ten new Olympic marks.

Also the boxing finals at the Velodrome d,Hiver were characterized by wierd decisions and nearly ended in a riot, the United States boxers (who by the way got none the best of the decisions) won the Olympic ring title, with 38 points to 30 for Great Britain. Denmark as third, with twenty points.

Two Win Championships.

Fidel Labarba, Los Angeles, and Jack Fields, Los Angeles, won the flyweight and featherweight titles respectively—the only Americans to win individual championships. Our fighters piled up points for second and third places.

The victories of Helen Wills and Vincent Richards over their French opponents were particularly welcome in view of the attitude adopted by the French spectators, since the matches started.

The United States is certain to add the mixed doubles title to the string, for Richards and Mrs. Jessup meet R. Norris Williams and Mrs. Wightman in the finals today, while Richards and Hunter meet Cochet and Brugnon, of France in the finals of the men's doubles.

Brugnon and Cochet, fighting desperately won the first set 6-4, but Richards and Hunter evened it up by taking the second 6-2.

The Americans took the lead in the match when they won the third set, 6-3.

The match was developed into a battle royal as the Frenchmen won the fourth set, 6-2, making the game score two-all.

Western Amateurs Start Qualifying

CHICAGO, July 21.—Noted golfers including Chick Evans, Ruddy Knepper, Eddie Held, Robert A. Gardner and Jimmy Manion, started play today at the Hinsdale club in the first half of the thirty-six-hole qualifying round of the western amateur golf championship tournament.

Ralph Hoagland, of Olympic fields, and Carl B. Devol, Greenvalley club, were the first to start play. A heavy rain, during the night slowed down the course, the par of which is seventy-two.

The lowest thirty-one scores in the qualifying round, the second half of which will be played tomorrow, will qualify for the championship fight.

SOLONS AND SAINTS DIVIDE TWO GAMES

Second Almost Ends in Riot When Pop Bottles Start Falling Near Umpire Gaffney at End of Eighth.

Over three thousand fans, the largest "paid" which has been on hand this season watched a pair of hectic ball games Sunday, St. Joseph taking the first 10 to 4, and Lincoln the second 3 to 2. The night cap almost ended in a riot when fans began showering Umpire Gaffney with pop bottles at the end of the eighth inning. After considerable wait, the game was resumed and Bert Grover, who had relieved Anderson in the fourth, blanked the Jo-Jos again and in the home half Grover cracked a triple to left which scored Chavez with the winning run.

There had been much booing of the decisions of both Gaffney and Hayes all afternoon and when Gaffney chased Camp Skinner in the eighth it touched off the fireworks. Purdy was on third and a wild pitch hit Camp's ankle. Purdy raced home. Hayes at first allowed the score but after conferring with Gaffney, reversed his decision, sent Skinner to first and put Purdy back on third. Camp sounded off to Gaffney after he reached the base and the latter ordered Skinner off the field.

It was a "hating" afternoon, anyway, hot and sultry, and that was almost too much for the Lincoln rooters.

Bleachers Shower Bottles.

From out of the bleachers sailed some pop bottles. Gaffney motioned to Umpire Hayes to get out his watch preparatory to forfeiting the game. This set up another howl but the shower of bottles stopped and the game proceeded.

St. Joseph had gotten in a pair of runs in the fourth inning when Mathes singles thru short. Miller doubled to left, Mathes going to third They both scored on Demaggio's single down the third base line.

Demaggio stole second and went to third when Chavez failed to get to second in time to stop Snyder's throw. Gilbert and Douthit walked to fill the bases and that saw the passing of Anderson. Grover went in and struck out Minetree and Davenport to halt the rally.

Bert held the Saints safe the remainder of the way, a double play in the sixth by Chavez clarifying the atmosphere considerably. Miller had singled to start that frame. Gilbert got as far as second in the ninth but died there when Douthit struck out and Minetree popped up.

The Solons had scored a run in the fourth when Skinner singled and went to third on Lazzeri's single. McDaniel doubled, scoring Skinner, but Lazzeri ran past Josh Clarke's stop signal and was out at the plate.

Until the ninth it was a great pitchers' battle with Big Dave and Bert unable to get much of an advantage.

Grover scored the tieing run when he drew life on Nufer's error, went to second on Moore's sacrifice and scored on Pid Purdy's triple to center. Hack Hiller ran into the fence attempting to field the ball but after a brief rest was able to resume play.

The first game proved a walkaway for the Saints. The Solons were unable to do anything with McColl's offerings.

McColl Tight With Hits.

For the first four innings the Solons didn't get a hit. For the first six they didn't score but managed to get in a pair of runs in the seventh and ninth. On top of pitching a brilliant game McColl got three hits, a single, double, and a home run.

The Solons used three pitchers, only one of whom was effective. Pallas was rapped for seven hits and seven runs during his regime while Mike File, the new acquisition to the Solon roster, was tapped for three runs and five hits. Hanna managed to get by the last two innings without a hit nor run.

It wasn't altogether the pitching, however, in that first game which ruined the Solons. Six large boots of all kinds and descriptions factored in several of St. Joe's runs.

The Saints hopped off to a four run lead in the first inning. Both Douthit's and McColl's home runs came in the second inning with nobody on ahead of them. Score first game:

Outstanding Olympic Figures of 1924

I—WILLIE RITOLA.

BY FRANK GETTY.

NEW YORK, July 21.—It seems the height of ingratitude this thing that Willie Ritola did in the opening event of the Olympic games of 1924.

The little Finn was trained in the United States, and appeared in Marathon and distance runs thruout the east for several years All he learned of the running game, all the best coaching could lend to his lithe limbs, Ritola received here

But under the rules of the Olympiad, Willie represented Finland at Paris. And when the starter's gun sent the men away on the first event of the track and field program, the Finn romped around his field, smashed a world's record, won the race with 300 yards to spare and was so full of running at the finish he set out on another lap of the huge Colombes stadium. Vernon Booth, first American home, finished twelfth.

It was the flag of Finland that went up above the scoreboard, first to be honored because of an Olympic victory.

Speaking seriously, no sportsman will begrudge Ritola his success. Many acclaim his triumph in the 10,000 meter run at Paris the greatest individual Olympic achievement of modern times.

In the first place, rain was falling continuously and the track was heavy. This means a lot to runners who must plug along for more than six miles. Their running shoes drag up the heavy cinders; they are hampered—even with due allowance for proportion—more than short distance men.

Ritola ran as tho it were a day of spring sunshine. His most dangerous competitor was a big Swede named Wide. The two set out at pace that quickly left the entire field far behind.

Wide made the pace, with the Finn at his elbow, until the eleventh lap. Then Ritola lengthened his stride and gradually worked up to and past his rival. Stride for stride, he drew away from Wide, who could not maintain the terrific pace.

What had been a two-man race became a one-man affair, but the Finn never let up nor pampered himself. On he ran, as tho the seven devils of the old Finnish legend were nipping his heels. He was in a tremendous sprint at the finish with the tired Wide a couple of hundred meters back.

WILLIE RITOLA.

Willie cut 12 1-5 seconds from his former world mark in that race, but what he would have done had he been pushed or had he known the race was over, no one knows.

Ritola thought he had another lap to go, and he was tearing along at a great pace, running around the laggards of the field on another lap when Olympic officials flagged him and finally dragged him from the track.

Four years ago, Ritola won the same event at Antwerp, on that occasion setting a new Olympic and a new world mark. At the Antwerp games, the Finn's time was 30:25 2-5. At Paris it was 30:23 1-5.

Not content with his wonderful showing in the 10,000 meters, Ritola went out a couple of days later and won the 3,000 meter steeplechase without turning a hair—the first double winner of the games.

Des Moines Register: When the baseball season is over, Pitcher Edmondson of the Des Moines team simply switches to another sport, for he is football coach at a small Texas college. Edmondson came here from the Cleveland American league club.

Daily Oklahoman: "Happy" Campbell is a twin. No, the former Indian flinger has not been born again, but he has been signed to a contract to help Fort Smith win a Western association pennant.

Campbell is No. 832 on the Fort Smith payroll this season, Blake Harper counting that day lost whose low descending sun sees not at least one new player on the way to Twinland.

Harold Chavez, Lincoln's flashy shortstop, had a great day in the field Sunday. He had five putouts and five assists in the second tilt. He handled thirteen chances during the day without a boot.

Bert Grover's long smash to deep left past Demaggio in the ninth put the fixings to Big Dave Davenport. The Lincoln pitcher's hit scored Chavez with the winning tally after two were gone.

The first game was painful from a Lincoln point of view. There were three pitchers and six errors and just about everything that could happen did happen. It appeared that the Solons were suffering from stage fright.

The Saints outfield was playing great ball all afternoon. Miller made a shoe-string catch and then executed a dive into the earth but came up with the ball. Douthit ran to the foul line to spear Skinner's long hit with his gloved hand.

Everett Purdy, making his first appearance with the Solons, got a big hand on his trip to the plate. He scratched a hit in the first game and made an excellent catch of Mathes' low drive in the sixth. In the second game it was Purdy's triple in the eighth that brought Grover home with the tieing run. Purdy carried the heavy bat in the second getting "three for four."

Ben Anderson, re-signed after doing a turn with Beatrice in the Tri-State, started the second game, and altho he was knocked off the knob it was Umpire Hayes that broke his heart. Hayes walked Demaggio and Gilbert by calling balls that made the fans writhe and feel certain that he was afflicted with sun spots. He put Pallas in a hole at the start of the first contest by letting a couple of strikes on Nufer prolong the latter's life until he scratched a hit past Pallas. That started the fireworks which resulted in four runs.

After the first game with the bobbles and misplays which added to the discomfiture of an already [illegible] the second got away to an [illegible] start. Chavez, McDaniel and Moore made three excellent plays to [illegible]

[illegible] that hasn't been equaled here this season. In the first [illegible] Demaggio stole home in the [illegible]

[illegible] in the seventh which scored Chavez in the first game.

St. Joe pulled out for Tarkio, Mo., where the Saints will appear in an exhibition game Monday.

Bob Snyder's throwing arm was working and after he had relieved Conkey in the first game, he nipped a pair of runners at second.

Mike File, from the west coast, was given a chance in the first game and while Mike showed he had plenty of stuff his control was lacking.

Scotty McDonald, veteran third baseman has been released. Mac was a great third sacker and still is judging from the number of clubs desiring his signature to a contract. Scotty got away to a poor start here and seemed unable to find himself. McDonald played his best ball on the road. He is known all over the circuit and has a host of friends and followers everywhere he plays. Mac was unusually good in a pinch. He will be missed by the fans here who have known and liked him.

FIRPO AND WOMAN ARE QUESTIONED

Immigration Officials Take Wild Bull and "Secretary" to Ellis Island on Account of Passports.

NE WYORK, July 21—Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight who arrived here today for a match with Harry Wills, wastaken to Ellis Island on a technical charge that his passport was improperly visaed.

With the boxer was taken Senorita Blanca Loudres, who occupied a state room adjoining Firpo's during the voyage from Buenos Aires. Senorita Loudres was for Havana, where the American Legion did not touch, and she and the "Wild bull of the Pampas" were detained upon her attempt to leave the liner with him.

Hold Firpo on Ship.

Firpo was questioned by immigration authorities and had not left the ship several minutes after other passengers began to disembark.

A young woman listed on the ship's register as Senorita Blanca Loudres, who embarked at Buenos Aires, also was questioned.

The young woman traveled in a state room next to that of the heavyweight, it was said, and they were friendly during the voyage.

Senorita Loudres' ticket read to Havana, but she was oblified to come from Buenos Aires to New York because the American Legion does not stop at Havana.

Firpo and the woman were held together in the dining room of the liner, while half a dozen customs and immigration officials subjected both to severe questioning. At one time the woman declared she was the prize fighter's secretary, but was unable to show any knowledge of shorthand or typewriting.

The erstwhile "wild bull" who looked quite fit except that he was some ten pounds over weight, was reminded that the dusky Wills stood in the way, and admitted that he would concentrate on that match first.

"I hope to beat Wills so decisively that nothing will stand in the way of my getting another match with Dempsey," Luis said.

The Argentine champion trained during the voyage from Buenos Aires, exercising and sparring daily.

To Make His Peace.

Firpo apparently has decided to make peace with Jimmy DeForest, for he said he would certainly get an American trainer and that he now knew he would have beaten Dempsey if he had had the advantage of American handling in their last bout.

Immigration officials completed questioning of the prize fighter and the woman shortly before 1 p. m., and announced they would be taken to Ellis island after luncheon, on a technical charge of improper vises on their passports.

Eduordo Carbone, Firpo's manager and Miguel Serrara, a sparring partner, also will be taken to Ellis island, and held as material witnesses.

Firpo Tones Dress Down; Spirits Up

NEW YORK, July 21.—Quite a dashing and debonair "Bull of the Pampas" was the towering Senor Luis Angel Firpo, who arrived here today aboard the Munson liner American Legion—an altogether changed Firpo from the sullen, awkward figure who came last year and worked his way to a $200,000 sock on the chin from Jack Dempsey

Luis has toned his dress down, and his spirits up, but his optimism remained unchanged

"I'm going to 'take' Dempsey this time," said Firpo in Spanish—"I'm going to take the championship home I feel Dempsey was quite lucky last time, and that I can beat him."

Bill Tilden Wins Illinois Net Title

CHICAGO, July 21.—"Big Bill" Tilden has added the Illinois state singles championship to his string. Before a crowd of 5,000 Sunday, he defeated Howard Kinsey, San Francisco 6-1, 0-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, Australian Davis cup players, won the men's doubles championships by defeating Howard and Robert Kinsey, San Francisco, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-8, 6-4.

LESSONS IN BASEBALL.

When should a player try to catch a runner "napping" on the bases?

GROVER C. ALEXANDER.

Answered by

Pitcher, Chicago Cubs: A major league leader for 17 years. Greatest pitcher in the National League.

Try to catch a base-runner off of the base any time you believe he is taking too much of a lead and that you can "get" him. If you do not have excellent control and a very fast delivery there is no reason for throwing to the bases, except to worry the runner. In my opinion the practice of throwing to the bases as some pitchers use it, slows up the game and brings no results except an occasional wild pitch.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, July 21. Grain futures had a nervous opening on the board of trade today.

Scattered buying in new crop wheat, based on unfavorable weather over the American southwest brought a fractional upturn. Spot fell off on liberal offerings.

Hot dry weather over the corn belt was regarded favorable for the growing crop and caused sellers to become active at the start.

Oats slumped with corn and better weather news.

Provisions was firm with steady hogs and cables.

Grain Market Opinions.

Chicago Tribune: From all indications, higher prices for grains, livestock are in prospect and beef prices undoubtedly would be higher were the speculative trade interested in cattle to the same extent as in hogs.

Within the last month the world wheat situation has changed to the opposite of that prevailing for the last year and from now on expectations are that it is to be a sellers market instead of a buyers.

Harvesting and marketing of winter wheat has been delayed by wet weather, but there appears to be no great rush on the part of growers to take advantage of the close to thirty cents advance per bushel.

Expectations are that the new $26,000,000 grain marketing company which was formally launched last week to take over the business of the five big grain concerns is likely to have a constructive effect on the marketing of grain.

Improvement is reported in many sections of the corn belt but the crop on the whole should be tasseling at this time which is not the case. There probably will be less commercial corn raised this year than for many years with a liberal abandonment of acreage.

Speculatively, oats are regarded as relatively too low as compared with corn. Harvesting has started, and a good crop is indicated.

Rye is too low as compared with wheat and corn.

Thomson McKinnon: Look for a two-sided market in wheat. Suggest caution in buying corn and oats.

Uhlman Grain Co.: Nervous markets are indicated.

Logan & Bryan: We prefer the buying side on the dips.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: We favor the buying side on all dips.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: The current level for wheat seems justified. Corn is a weather market. Oats are cheap.

Journal of Commerce: Everyone conceeds that the adjustment between the supply and demand for wheat is to be so close that competition between buyers should be much more aggressive than for a long time. This should bring better prices.

In the meantime the status of the rye market should be greatly benefitted.—Lamson.

Cromwell's Report.

EDMONTON, July 21. — Wainwright north to Vermillion and west to Lamont, sufficient moisture for two weeks. Wheat and oats promise around half of last year's big crop, but Lamont to Edmonton 70 per cent with moisture to market wheat. Locals fears second growth which would not increase the yield, but would add green tough berries. Rain again here last night. This latter territory is a good barley section with a fair average prospect. Saturday is was clear at Vermillion, but good showers recently, Camrose east to Hardesty. All will need considerable more rain. Wheat much burned, but might average 12 to 14 bushels with favorable weather. Oats 20 per cent fairly good but rest short very few heading and condition around sixty. Was surprised to find crops even fair—Lamson.

Feeding Lambs, (range stock) medium choice $10.50@12.25.

Omaha Livestock.

OMAHA, July 21.—Cattle: receipts 5,300. With a very moderate run of cattle for the opening day of the week the market was active and prices ranged from 10 to 25c higher than Friday. Choice heavy beeves sold at $9.40@10.00 but the advance was most pronounced on the good to choice yearlings selling at $9.25@9.50. On the plain light weight steers and yearlings the market was just about steady with the closeofl ast week and the same held true as to cowstuff and stockers asd feeders.

Hogs—receipts 12,000. Sharp advances at other centers and only moderate supplies locally for the initial day of the week gave prices a substantial upturn in this morning's session. Movement to shippers was active at mostly a quarter higher levels, while the parker trade also displayed snap at 15c to 25c advance. Bulk $7.25@8.00; top $8.05.

Sheep—receipts 12,000. General sentiment was inclined to lean to the bear side of the market this morning and with rather unfavorable reports coming from other points, lambs suffered a moderate setback while feeders were slow and steady to weak with aged sheep fully steady.

Cattle—receipts: 5,300; market steady to higher; yearlings $6.50@9.85; steers $7.50@10.00; cows and heifers $2.00@8.75; stockers and feeders $3.50@7.75; calves $4.00@10.00; bulls and stags $4.00@7.00.

Stocks Average $91.38.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Fifty stocks averaged $91.38.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, July 21.—News bearing on security values over the week-end was almost uniformly constructive. Gratifying progress was reported in the Inter-Allied conference. Fisher's wholesale commodity price index not only turned upward, but scored one of the best weekly gains of the year, standing at 144.5 as of July 15, against 142.3 in the preceding week.

Reviving prosperity was reported in the Northwest, where crop conditions were described as the most promising in ten years. In the oil industry the situation was still complicated by price cutting but a further falling off in production took place in the Los Angeles basin last week's average daily output declining 7,100 barrels.

Trading on the exchange opened the week in brisk fashion, reflecting the heavy accumulation of buying orders over Sunday.

Opening prices included: Southern Railway 65; American Linseed Oil 19¼ up ¼; Atchison 105½; International Nickel 18¾ up ⅛; American Can 118, up ½; Kennecott 42 up ⅛; Studebaker 35⅞ off ⅛; Congoleum 47, up ⅝; Stewart Warner 51⅛; Pan American Petroleum 51, up ⅛; General Electric 247⅞; North American 26⅝; U. S. Steel 100¼ up ¼; Missouri, Kansas and Texas 15⅝; American Woolen 70⅝ up ⅜; Sinclair Oil 16¾ up ¼; General Motors 14¾; Northern Pacific 65⅝ up 1⅜; Bethlehem Steel 42¾; New Haven 28½ up ⅜, American Locomotive 80¼, up ⅛; Baltimore & Ohio 61, up ⅛; Anaconda 33¼ up ⅜.

Stock Market Opinions.

Post & Flagg: Higher prices seem probably this week with rails the feature.

Logan & Bryan: We look for higher prices and prefer the rails, oils and coppers.

Ware & Co.: Higher prices seem probable. Expect the market to be active.

Thomson McKinnon: It is time to be optimistic. We continued to recommend buying stocks.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: We believe the rails will sell higher.

Stein Alstrin: Look for an irregular trading market in industrials with continued accumulations and higher prices for the rails.

Wollman & Co.: The standard rails and specialties look higher.

New York American: Powerful financial interests are watching the London conference with intense interest and some concern. American interests regards this as an occasion of supreme moment to the whole world. If the deadlock is not broken now the whole international outlook will become extremely grave.

New York Times: Whether or not rumors of rail mergers which advanced the rails last week will develope into actual consolidations, remains to be seen. Probably they will not.—Lamson.

School Memories.

Youth's Companion. Education, some one has said, is what we have left when we have forgotten everything we have learned; and it is a common observation that in after life the ordinary mind retains few of the facts that it memorized in school. Half a dozen dates, the multiplication table, the names of a few common birds and flowers, a small number of chemical and mathematical formulas, some of the laws of physics we perhaps remember; but even those things we can usually recall to mind only when we have learned them again from daily experience after graduation. How many college graduates could pass their former entrance tests without special preparation? Even those who enter the teaching profession usually have to learn their subjects all over again before they can instruct others.

But, tho we soon forget what our teachers taught us, we all remember the teachers themselves, their whims the atmosphere they created, the spirit in which they worked, their enthusiasm and their ideals. Talk to "the oldest living graduate," or keep your ears open at the ordinary alumni reunion. How vividly the men remember their former teachers! Names, dates, details of events may be blurred, but the personalities of the instructors have left lasting impressions, and often a grammar school or a preparatory school teacher leaves a deeper imprint on his students than a university professor.

In choosing a school or a college it is therefore more important to consider the personalities of its faculty than the style of its architecture or its mechanical equipment. Every one has heard Garfield's pithy comment that "Mark Hopkins on one end of a log and a student on the other make a college," and it is worth noting that one of Garfield's sons is now president of the college of which his father made that remark. "What has Harvard cost?" a newspaper editor once asked President Eliot. The reply was "Two hundred and seventy years of experience."

Some day the elective system may come to mean freedom to choose teachers rather than subjects. In Europe students have always chosen professors rather than universities. Where an American says, "I am a graduate of such and such a college," a European is likely to say "I studied such and such a subject under such and such a man." As anyone of us looks back over his own school experience he finds that it is not the painfully acquired knowledge that he treasures, but the memories of individual teachers, even tho he may not have learned to appreciate them until long afterwards. And it is not what our teachers knew or taught that we remember so much as what they were. Personalities count for more than degrees.

Garments of the Opposite Sex.

Boston Transcript: From Kansas comes the intelligence that there is lively controversy in Atchison over the wearing of knickerbockers by women. They have had the temerity to appear in thes garments upon the public streets, and a scandalized citizen has brought to light an ordinance enacted fifty-four years ago against "dressing like the opposite sex." It is brief and unmistakable in terms. It declares that "any person dressing himself or herself in the garments of the opposite sex and thus appearing on any of the streets or public places in this city shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than five or more than forty dollars." Old-fashioned folk in Atchison are represented as demanding the arrest of all female wearers of knickerbockers. It is easy to understand how a question of this kind might, for the moment, create more interest in the Kansas town than a democratic nomination for the presidency.

But does the ordinance apply? Can it be successfully maintained that men may call knickerbockers their own? Times was when the knee breeches were distinctively part of masculine attire. But they went out of fashion, to be succeeded by the pantaloons, calling "pants." There were always, to be sure, a few men who wore what were generally described as "short trousers." But for a long time this little minority were not in high favor. When one of them ventured forth upon the public streets wearing his abbreviated garment, he was received with something akin to the ridicule that was heaped upon the other pioneer, the man who first carried an umbrella in the streets of London. Then came the bicycle, the growth of golf and increasing interest in other outdoor sports. More and more men adopted the comfortable and convenient knickerbockers, but women were not far behind in taking up this new fashion. In these twentieth century days, it might be argued with reason that knickerbockers are part of the feminine as well as the masculine wardrobe. In which case the Atchison ordinance would no more apply than it would apply to the style of shoes that the outdoor girl may wear in tramping over the Kansas prairies.

Therefore let the jayhawkers, with ideas reminiscent of a bygone age, do their worst in Atchison. Presumably there is a prairie Portia prepared to take the case of her sisters and to demonstrate before the supreme court, if need be, that the ordinance which forbids the wearing of the garments of the opposite sex is not to be properly and legally regarded as the law made and provided, when it comes to the wearing of knickerbockers. In the meantime it is to be hoped that Mr. William Allen White, upon his return to Emporia after his labors in reporting the democratic convention, will discuss the entertaining question, "What's the Matter With Atchison?"

The Paradise of Low Prices.

Current History Magazine: Dwellers in large cities, who complain of high prices, would indeed acclaim Ecuador the land of heart's delight. Eggs in the department of Oriente, in that republic, cost nominally 10 cents a dozen, which in United States currency would be 2 1-2 cents; but since the producer receives merely a yard of cloth in exchange, this barter brings the cost of a dozen eggs down to 8 mills in American money. The price of one egg could only be established by figuring in rubles. A person with a fixed income of $25 a month can live comfortably in Orient. Almost no one pays house rent; it is better to own your home. A five room two story house, such as I occupied in Tena, the department capital, for three months, cost 200 sucres (about $45) to build. Ten Indians, each receiving 40 Ecuadorian cents a day, erected it in four weeks. Occupation is a more difficult problem. No white man works here; even the police are idle. Furthermore, there is no servant problem. The authorities "cede" one or two more Indian boys for the housework; these lads are usually about twelve years of age, and they bring their wives, who are a little younger, wash lady charges about a dollar a month for a good-sized washing to assist in the work. ASSESSOR REPORTS VALUES OF LAND

The State Board Notifies Many Counties to Show Cause Why Decrease Should Not Be Denied.

The state board of assessment will meet Wednesday in representative hall at 10 o'clock at the state house as a board of equalization. Thirty-four counties which show a decrease in the assessed valuation of lands have been notified to show cause why such decrease should not be denied.

A compilation by State Tax Commissioner W. H. Smith shows nine counties have reported increases and values as follows: Box Butte, 6 per cent; Furnas 3; Morrill 1; Nuckolls and Otoe 2; Pierce 1.5; Scottsbluff 1; Thomas 3; Thurston 2.

The following shows the average value per acre as fixed by the state board in 1923 and the average value per acre as returned by assessors in 1924 and the percentage of decrease in the different counties:

MERE MENTION.

A. E. Van Doren, 1522 N street, reported to police Sunday evening that someone had stolen his touring car while it was parked in front of his residence. Heath Griffith, 323 South Twelfth, reported the theft of a windshield and two tires from his auto.

The Elks band concert at the F street park Sunday from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., was attended by over three thousand people, it was estimated. A swarm of autos gathered at the park. In addition to the program several additional selections were played by request. Burford B. Gage, on the cornet, and Neil McDowell on the baritone, drew much applause with solos. Prof. W. T. Quick directed the band Sunday afternoon in the absence of Dr. E. A. Wood, who is out of the city on a vacation. Arrangements are being made for the band to play at Antelope park next Sunday.

The retail food index issued by the United States department of labor thru the bureau of labor statistics shows that there was an increase of 1 per cent in the retail cost of food in June, 1924, as compared with May, 1924. During the month from May 15, 1924, to June 15, 1924, fourteen articles on which monthly prices are secured increased as follows: Potatoes, 14 per cent; eggs, 10 per cent; oranges, 8 per cent; butter, 5 per cent; vegetable lard substitute, 2 per cent; round steak, pork chops, ham, macaroni and onions, 1 per cent; and sirloin steak, bacon, canned salmon and coffee, less than five-tenths of 1 per cent. Sixteen articles decreased in price as follows: Cabbage, 25 per cent; granulated sugar, 10 per cent; leg of lamb, hens and bananas, 2 per cent; late beef, fresh milk, evaporated milk, oleomargarine, cheese, lard, navy beans and prunes, 1 per cent; and chuck roast, nut margarine and tea, less than five-tenths of 1 per cent. Thirteen articles showed no change in price in the month. They are as follows: Rib roast, bread, flour, cornmeal, rolled oats, corn flakes, wheat cereal, rice, baked beans, canned corn, canned peas, canned tomatoes and raisins. For the year period June 15, 1923, to June 15, 1924, the decrease in all articles of food combined was about 1 1-3 per cent.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Scottsbluff Star-Herald: Dr. Robert F. Gilder of Omaha, Nebraska's famous artist and archeologist, has been here since Wednesday, painting a picture of Scotts Bluff. He expects to finish his work by Sunday, going from here to the fossil beds at Agate and thence east.

Dr. Gilder has been so quietly pursuing his artistic vocation about the national monument that his presence here was unknown until he dropped into town to call on some old friends. He has a further method of avoiding public notice in that he does most of his sketching at night. He declares himself enchanted with the scenes about the bluff, and says that hereafter he is going to confine his landscape painting to Nebraska pictures, finding more inspiration here than in Arizona, Connecticut and other localities of the United States while he has at various times gone in quest of rare beauties of nature. The artist is accompanied by Mrs. Gilder. They travel de luxe in a Ford touring to which they have attached so many appliances that Uncle Henry would hardly recognize it. In the manner of artists they avoid hotels and camp at the scene of action, the Ford being convertible into a raintight and weatherproof sleeping apartment by the mere jerking of a few mysterious levers and cranks and other infernal devices.

A birthday party was given in honor of Mrs. Sears on her seventy-seventh aniversary Friday, at 1310 L street. About twenty guests were present. They presented Mrs. Sears with a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clark have just returned from a motor trip thru the western part of the state.

Dr. Fletcher L. Wharton, who has been ill for some time is in a serious condition at his home. He had been at a hospital but made request that he be taken home. It was stated at his residence that he had shown no improvement during his present illness.

OBITUARY.

A. Dorsey.

A. Dorsey, eighty-two, died July 2 at Conway Springs, Kas., and was buried July 6. He was a civil war veteran, serving in the Eighteenth Pennsylvania cavalry and enduring fourteen months in Libby and Andersonville prisons. After the war he lived for a while at Dixon, Ill., where he married Frances Minerva Schultz. They removed to Lincoln, where Mr. Dorsey took a homestead and engaged in farming and stock raising. Mrs. Dorsey died in 1878 and the next year he married Miss Ersula Frye. They went to Kansas in 1882. Mr. Dorsey is survived by four children, Mrs. Mary E. Light, Hydro, Okla., Chester A., Charles A., and Mrs. Florine Teske, all of Conway Springs; and a half brother and sister, Michael and Mary Coughenour, of Akron, O.

GRAIN UP TO NEW LEVELS

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER AND SPECULATION CAUSE.

Corn Makes Advance During Week Altho Weather Conditions More Favorable.

Unfavorable weather and speculative buying of large volume advanced grain prices to new high levels during the week ending July 19, according to the weekly grain market review of the United Stated department of agriculture. The demand for cash grains, however, became less active toward the close of the week and the market appeared to be developing a weaker tone.

Reports of very unfavorable weather in the Canadian spring wheat area and in some sections of the United States contributed largely to the advance in the wheat market but the heavy speculative buying also aided in forcing wheat prices to new high levels. July wheat at Chicago advanced 10 cents for the week closing Friday. The advance at Winnipeg was slightly larger, July closing there at $1.36 1 2.

The movement of new wheat to the southwestern markets, particularly Wichita and Kansas City, continued heavy but general rains in the central west late in the week stopped threshing and the movement may show some falling off, altho country elevators report heavy stocks on hand.

Threshing was becoming more general in the soft winter wheat territory. The first car of new wheat arrived at Cincinnati during the week and the first car of Nebraska wheat was received at Omaha.

The corn market also continued a steady advance during the week and July prices at the close on Friday at Chicago showed a net gain for the week of 2 1-4 cents. Weather conditions generally in the corn belt, however, were more favorable and the crop made good progress in most sections. Because of the lateness of the crop, however, it is feared that a large percentage will not mature properly and the bullish sentiment in the market was strengthened by this sentiment.

There was a good cash demand thruout the week and while receipts were of moderate volume, they were readily absorbed upon arrival at the markets. The higher prices are forcing feeders to use substitutes and farmers are also reducing their feeding requirements. Increasing livestock sales were reported from the principal markets and the stock arriving also showed the effect of less grain feed.

The oats market held fairly firm during the week but pressure of the new crop was beginning to be felt toward the close. The movement of the new crop, however, has been extremely light to date. Receipts of old oats at the markets also were of small volume and the demand was sufficient to absorb all arrivals readily at current prices.

Barley prices advanced about five cents at the principal markets. Higher prices of other grains created a better demand for barley and good shipping orders were received which were sufficient to take care of all offerings. The barley crop thruout the northwest is reported in good condition with a good stand and heads well filled. The crop on the Pacific coast, however, will be greatly reduced because of the drouth.

Shippers, elevator interests and mills continued to be steady buyers of rye thruout the week and prices made further advances of about 5 cents per bushel, September rye at Minneapolis closing on Friday at 77 3 8 cents. No. 1 and No. 2 rye at that market sold mostly at 1 1-2 cents over the September price.

RED TOP COLUMBIAN GRAIN BIN

Thresh right into a Red Top Bin from the header or shock. Its scientific ventilating system cures grain—improves the quality.

Made of galvanized steel throughout. 24 gauge bottom and side walls and 26 gauge roof. Same design and construction as famous Columbian Style "A" Bin of which more than 15,000 have been sold. Triple-ply joints and corrugated side walls give it extra strength. Galvanized roof is heavily coated with metal preservative red paint, baked-on under intense heat.

A wonderful automatic machine invented by our engineers makes possible a 25% price reduction. At this big value delivered prices [illegible] no grain grower can afford to rush to market for the want of fire, rat and weather proof storage. Platform not included.

Public Service Towels Are

SANITARY—Made from clean, fresh spruce wood, to pulp, to paper, to package right in the mill. No old newspapers or other waste paper go into their manufacture.

STRONG—Rub-don't-blot. That's the natural way to use a towel. Public Service towels dry your hands, but they don't rub up like a blotter and leave disagreeable bits of paper all over your hands and face.

ABSORBENT—In Public Service Towels strength is combined with absorbency in just the right proportion. They take up the water, but by rubbing, not blotting.

ECONOMICAL—Only one towel at a time can be withdrawn from the cabinet. And because you can rub, instead of blotting, every towel goes further. Also, there's a double fold hem where the wet hand takes hold to pull each towel from the cabinet, an exclusive Public Service feature. This prevents tearing. Tests by school departments, factories, office building managements and others have proved these the most economical and satisfactory individual towel service available.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: I see in today's paper where "Bee" wishes to write who has adopted a child, so here I am for the firstt ime.

I was maried quite young to a man ten or twelve years older than I was, and he really tried to be good to me, but I think there was to much differance in our age to be companiable and I used to be very lonesome, in I we had a baby, things would of been different, but such was not our luck.

So we decided to adopt one (as we are both very fond of children always taking care of the neighbors) we took a dear, sweet girl and certainly enjoyed her as much as possible, well in the course of time we had a baby of our own and were very happy with our two children a girl and a boy, but not very long after our boy came my husband died and left me with two children and in poor health, but my adopted daughter certainly was a great comfort and help to me in my sorrow; she was then in her teens, but is now married and the dear, dear letters I receive from her on Mother's day, birthdays and Christmas are very precious to me.

If I could afford it I certainly would take another one, but as I can't do that I would love to take a baby to board. It just makes me boil to see a woman love and fondle a dog when there are so many homeless children who could love them back, what is sweeter than a babies' arms around your neck, and hear them say I love you?

I'm ashamed to think a woman would even think of doing what Hungry Heart suggested. One who loves babies.

A. Yours is the true womanly spirit—love for children. Thank you for teling us your experiences with your adopted child.

Dear Mary Gordon: (1) Could you tell me what the latest kind of sweaters are and in what colors to be worn with white pleated skirts

(2) Do you know in what way doctors can remove scars, and what doctor to consult, as I think there is a way. Please advise me on this, if possible, thanking you.—Peggy.

A. Ask your family physician to recommend some surgeon. I believe the skin grafting process from some other part of the body is the main method used in obliterating scars.

Sallie says: Sleeveless sweaters of wool or fiber silk are the thing for summer wear. Bright yellow, bright orange and bright green are popular sports colors, but there is a variety of colors and color combinations offered. Any becoming color will be good with the white skirt.

Dear Mary Gordon: Would you please tell me how to take out a spot from my Canton crepe dress? It is brown in color, and the spot is either water, pop, or ice cream. I have tried to take it out with gasoline, but it did not help. Would you kindly print a method to remove water, pop or ice cream stains?—Jeanette.

A. Water spots can be removed by dampening the entire material evenly and pressing while damp. Either sponge the material carefully with clean water or shake it in the steam from a briskly boiling teakettle, until it is thoroly damp, then press it.

Ice cream stains can be removed by sponging with cool or lukewarm water. If the grease spot still remains, remove it by a solvent, using fuller's earth, starch or talcum on the spot. Place a blotting paper on each side of the stain, press the material with a warm iron. Use the same method for pop.

Readers who desire can secure a booklet, "Removal of Stains From Clothing and Textiles," by sending a two-cent stamp to Frederic J. Haskin, Nebraska State Journal Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Gertrude: Perhaps the young man is busy. Certainly he needs some help while he is so busy. I wouldn't worry about the other woman. She has troubles of her own.

Dear Mary Gordon: My problem is doubtless a common one—a lack of experience in traveling Pullman style. I am taking my first long trip this summer and am handicapped in not being familiar with Pullman service. In boarding a train, how do you know in which car to find your berth which, of course, has been reserved before? What do you do with a suit case or bag when you go to bed in the sleeper? Carry it along? Who can use the observation car and for how long? What should be done with grips when you go to the observation car?

In traveling, is it permissible to side-step a bit from propriety and make acquaintances by talking to other travelers? It seems that one who can get in a conversation with others, regardless of whether it is proper or not, finds it especially entertaining to get their viewpoints and help to pass the time away. I will have a companion.

I'm sorry to make this so long, but I've been silent heretofore and will appreciate your valuable service in this instance.—Joan.

A. Your Pullman ticket will be numbered, both car and berth number being given. If you cannot decipher it, the porter will. You will not be allowed to board the wrong car. Your suitcase or bag can be pushed under the berth after you have removed everything you wish from it, if you have a lower berth. If it is an upper, and you are alone, you may take your bag with you. Or when you are ready for bed, ring for the porter (there is a little bell under the mirror) and he will dispose of it for you.

The observation car is for the use of all Pullman passengers. You may stay there as long as you wish.

Ordinarily anyone, except a very young girl, may talk with any other traveler. Leave your grips in the care of the porter while you are in the observation car. Of course you should not leave money or jewels in it. It will be safe with him

MEN AND THINGS

Most of the Nebraska delegates to the democratic national convention paid $10 a day for the rooms they occupied at nearby hotels. This did not include any meals at all. Unless one was a diligent seeker after gustatorial bargains he paid for his eats in the same proportions as for his meals. We have read of rich bankers paying $80,000 for a painting, of fashionable women giving up $40,000 for a necklace and of collectors paying $10,000 for an old book. Paying ten dollars a day for a hotel room is of the same pattern of extravagance. With so far reaching and excellent a campaign issue close at hand, why was it not included in the supposedly all-exclusive platform?

We are much prone to basing our opinions of people of other bloods than those we boast of ourselves on superficial observation. As for instance, the idea most of us have about the Chinese is bottomed on the scanty relations we have had in the past with the humble representatives of that race who have operated laundries in our cities. If the people of Lincoln are a bit different in this respect it is because of the presence here of a considerable number of bright young men as students at our university. Yet we were very pleasantly surprised not long ago in reading a book made up of extracts from Chinese writings, to find it full of wisdom and wit both. We wouldn't have been if we had stopped to think it over, but there you are.

Doubtless you noticed the figures handed out by the auditor the other day that disclosed that of the 86 million dollar mortgage that rests on the property of citizens of the state in the form of bonds issued for public improvement about two-thirds of it was placed there within the last four years. A large proportion of it represents bonds issued by counties and school districts, and it is fair to assume that a large part of the tax necessary to pay interest and to maintain a sinking fund for the eventual retirement of the bonds will come from the pockets of the farmers who have made little money since 1920. A number of thoughts are suggested thereby. The one we had in mind was that farmers ought not to complain of increase in taxes made by levying officers when they voluntarily vote huge sums on themselves.

The budget in national affairs has justified its existence. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, the last year in which appropriations were made under the old method, the government expended 5,538 million dollars, and taxed us 5,624 millions. For the succeeding three years, our expenditures, following the budget, were 3,795 millions, 3,697 millions and 3,497 millions, respectively, showing a progressive and consistent reduction of expenses, along with which has gone a corresponding reduction in taxation. Mr. Dawes drafted the budget system and Mr. Coolidge administered it. Yet thousands of men who have been crying out about taxes will vote for LaFollette because he stands for something that will increase them, government ownership of railroads.

The politicians have pinned a considerable number of bouquets upon their persons over their generosity towards the women since the latter have been endowed with the ballot. They have not neglected, on numerous occasions, to call our attention to the gracious welcome they had extended the women by giving them equal representation on the campaign committees and handing them out many positions as delegates to convention. We notice, however, that very few of them have won any nominations for office. A Lincoln man with two sons made them believe for a number of years during their adolescence that the parade was all there was to the circus. We understand that there came a time when they demanded more.

A friendly New York paper describes Mr. Davis as an aristocrat of aristocrats, living in the greatest splendor in an immense home in the center of a fine tract of land, surrounded by all the luxuries that are possible and ministered to by a large band of servants, headed by an English butler. That sort of publicity is supposed to be helpful to a candidate in a section of the country where there is a large sprinkling of foreign borns, who have not yet been weaned away by time and changed condition from their old love for a lord. Out here it excites only derisive comment.

ABE MARTIN

"Don't repeat this, fer I promised my barber I wouldn' tell a soul, but he says th' Bud's hain't happy," we heard Mrs. Em Moots say t'day. Delegate Art Smiley is home from th' dimmycratic convention boastin' about his New York run.

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd.)

8 Minutes to Answer This.

Take one feature of the human form, add a sharp report, add an organ, subtract a fruit, add a vegetable, add a large ostrich-like bird, subtract part of your foot, add a Hielander, subtract a piece of hospital furniture and the resulting letters will spell HIPPOPOTAMUS.

Answer to Yesterday's.

Since the uncle paid 1,200 pounds sterling for a third interest, the entire business was worth 3,600 pounds sterling. Of this junior owned 1,600 pounds sterling and senior 2,000 ponds stuerling. Senior took 800 pounds sterling of Uncle Dombey's contribution and junior 400 pounds sterling. Then the three interests were similar.

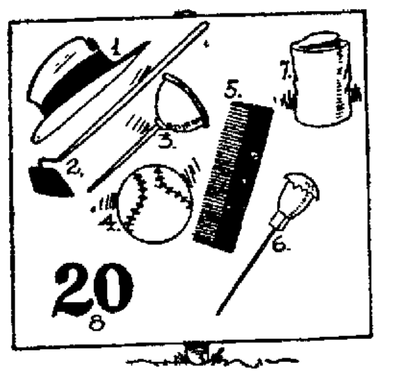
OUR DAILY PUZZLE

(By Walter Wellman.)



Take one letter from the name of the first object, one from the second, etc., and have a "Detroit Tiger." Repeat, and have another.

Answer to last puzzle: Star plus cuff plus ten minus cups plus boy minus bone plus cow minus crow equals TAFFY.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way says no wonder lamb is so expensive when so many of the sheep are killed just for their wool.

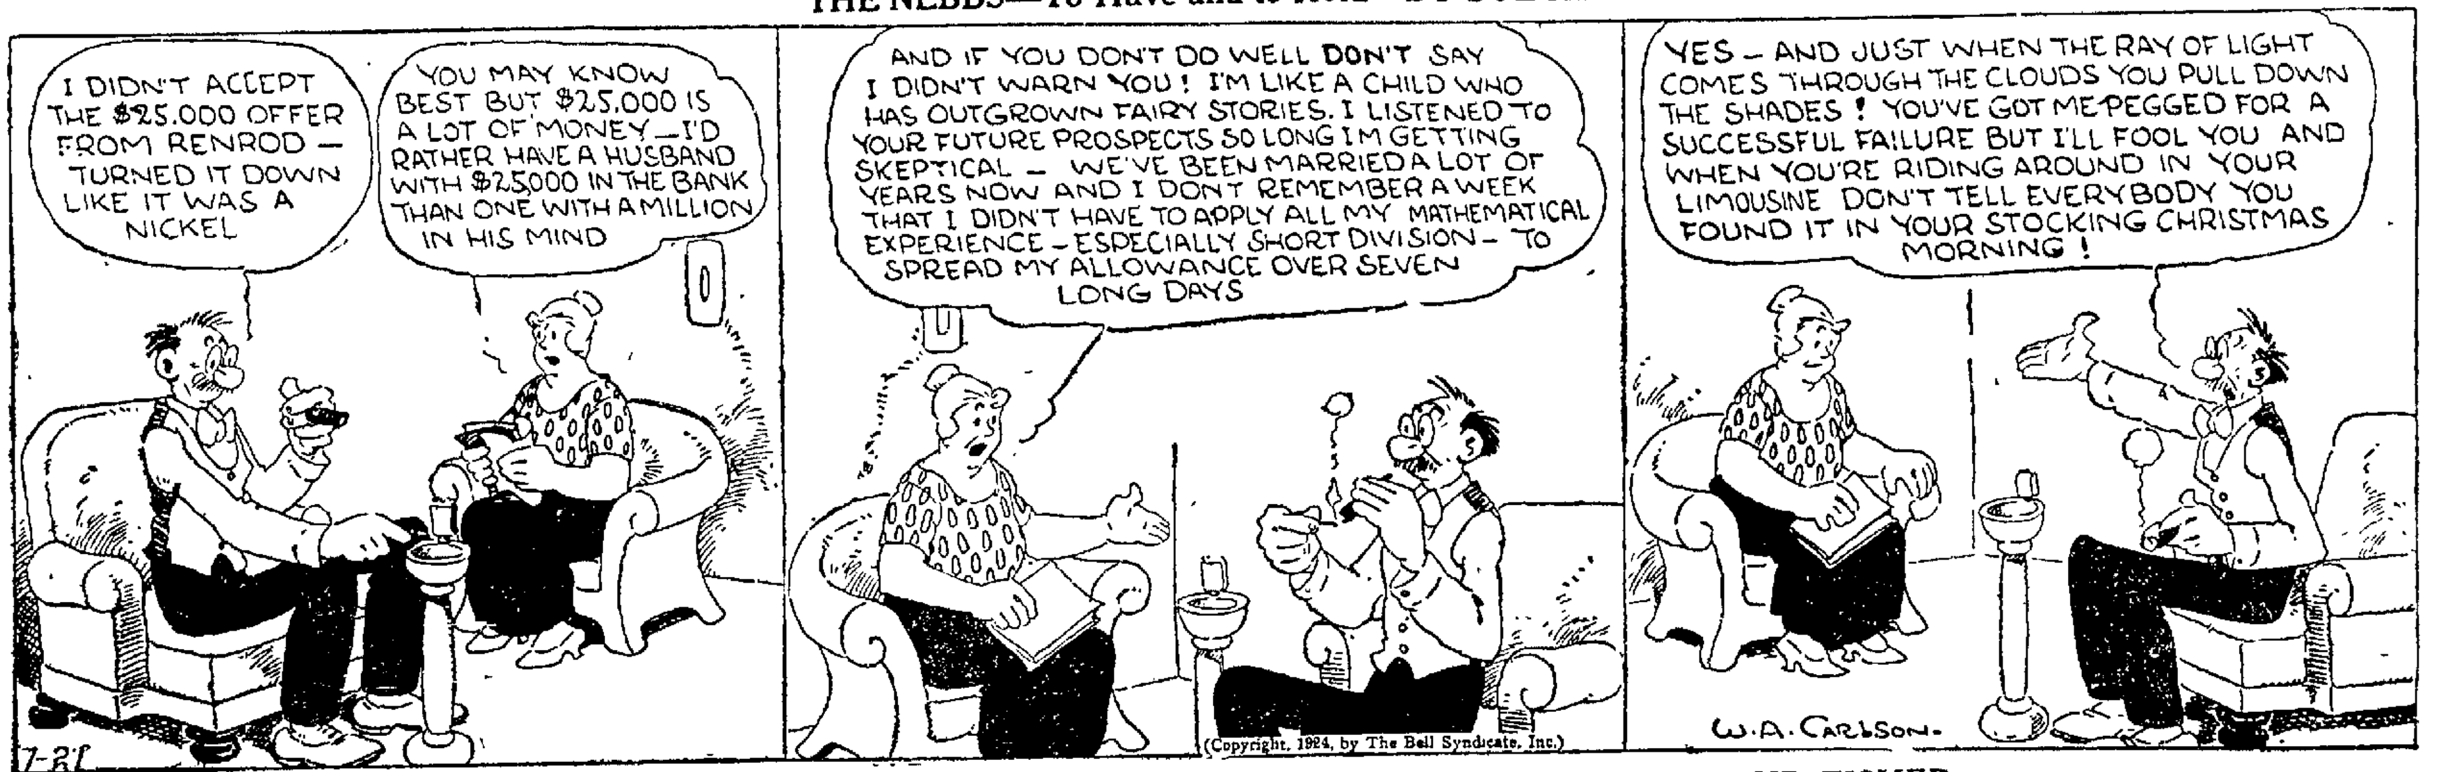
THE NEBBS—To Have and to Hold—BY SOL HESS.



I DIDN'T ACCEPT THE $25,000 OFFER FROM RENROD — TURNED IT DOWN LIKE IT WAS A NICKEL
YOU MAY KNOW BEST BUT $25,000 IS A LOT OF MONEY — I'D RATHER HAVE A HUSBAND WITH $25000 IN THE BANK THAN ONE WITH A MILLION IN HIS MIND
AND IF YOU DON'T DO WELL DON'T SAY I DIDN'T WARN YOU! I'M LIKE A CHILD WHO HAS OUTGROWN FAIRY STORIES. I LISTENED TO YOUR FUTURE PROSPECTS SO LONG I'M GETTING SKEPTICAL — WE'VE BEEN MARRIED A LOT OF YEARS NOW AND I DON'T REMEMBER A WEEK THAT I DIDN'T HAVE TO APPLY ALL MY MATHEMATICAL EXPERIENCE — ESPECIALLY SHORT DIVISION — TO SPREAD MY ALLOWANCE OVER SEVEN LONG DAYS
YES — AND JUST WHEN THE RAY OF LIGHT COMES THROUGH THE CLOUDS YOU PULL DOWN THE SHADES! YOU'VE GOT ME PEGGED FOR A SUCCESSFUL FAILURE BUT I'LL FOOL YOU AND WHEN YOU'RE RIDING AROUND IN YOUR LIMOUSINE DON'T TELL EVERYBODY YOU FOUND IT IN YOUR STOCKING CHRISTMAS MORNING!

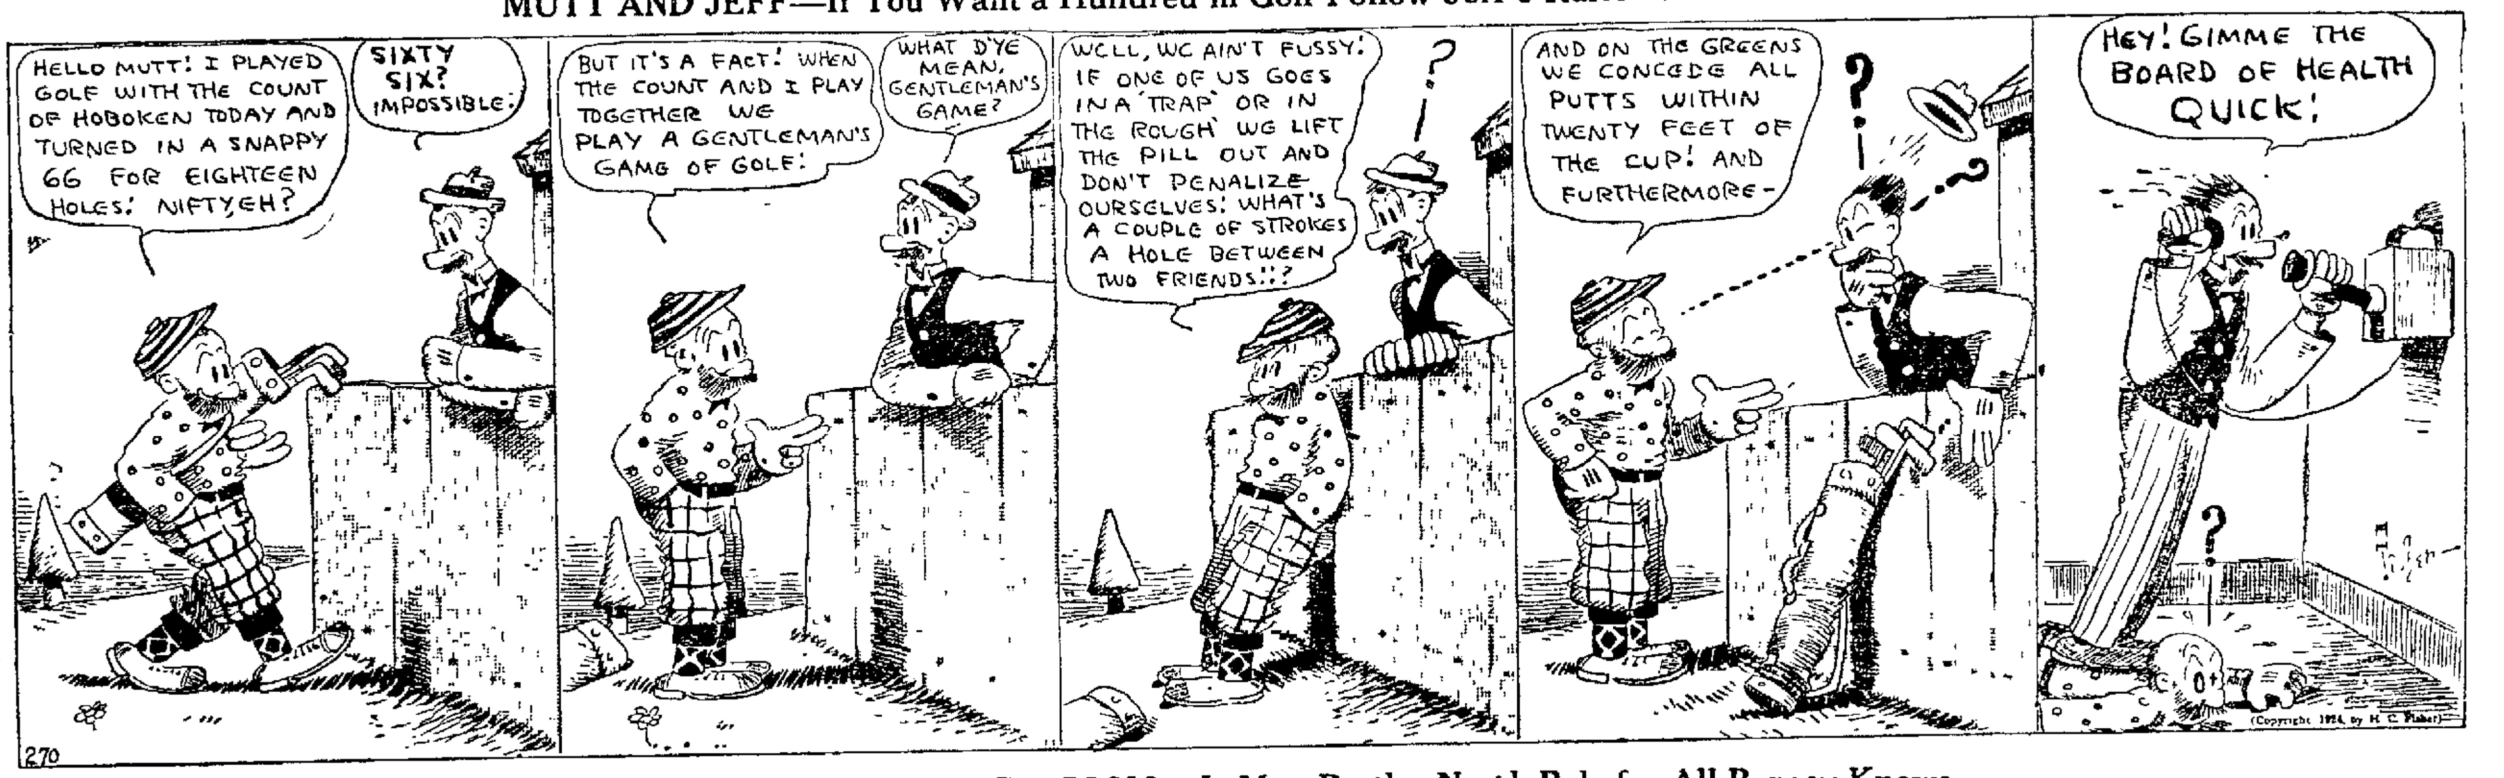
MUTT AND JEFF—If You Want a Hundred in Golf Follow Jeff's Rules—BY BUD FISHER.



HELLO MUTT! I PLAYED GOLF WITH THE COUNT OF HOBOKEN TODAY AND TURNED IN A SNAPPY 66 FOR EIGHTEEN HOLES! NIFTY EH?
SIXTY SIX? IMPOSSIBLE!
BUT IT'S A FACT! WHEN THE COUNT AND I PLAY TOGETHER WE PLAY A GENTLEMAN'S GAME OF GOLF!
WHAT D'YE MEAN, GENTLEMAN'S GAME?
WELL, WE AIN'T FUSSY! IF ONE OF US GOES IN A 'TRAP' OR IN THE 'ROUGH' WE LIFT THE PILL OUT AND DON'T PENALIZE OURSELVES! WHAT'S A COUPLE OF STROKES A HOLE BETWEEN TWO FRIENDS!?
AND ON THE GREENS WE CONCEDE ALL PUTTS WITHIN TWENTY FEET OF THE CUP! AND FURTHERMORE—
HEY! GIMME THE BOARD OF HEALTH QUICK!
